THE VOTE ON THE REFORM BILL.

Outline of the Debate—The Vote—Ministerial Movements—Speculations.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LONDON, Friday, April 1, 1859.

The majority in favor of Lord JOHN RUSSELL'S declaratory resolution respecting Reform, has proved larger than either side up to the last moment expected. Even bets were offered by the Ministerialists up to 10 o'clock last night that they would win; and I myself heard one of the most active of them declare some hours before that they could count upon upwards of 300 votes. Great exertions were made on both sides, and there have not been so many members in the House at a division for several years. Had the division taken place half an hour earlier, the majority would have been forty, Mr. W. BROWN, M. P. for South Lancashire, having been compelled by illness to return home before the close of Mr. DISRAELI'S speech.

The fortunes of the battle fluctuated frequently from time to time. Had the debate concluded on Tuesday, what is called the Stafford House clique, which includes the Cavendishes and Grosvenors, as well as the Gowers, would not have supported the amendment, but were disposed, like the members of the Fitzwilliam family and its nominees, to vote for the Conservatives. The probability of their doing so having got wind, every resource of private influence was set to work to recall them to their hereditary standard. Only let them help to beat the Tories first, and then they might endeavor to thwart Lord JOHN'S personal ambition as much as they pleased. After some demur and not without difficulty they were talked over, and consented to swell the triumph of their once honored, but no longer trusted chief.

Many other incidents might be mentioned which contributed to the result. Sir ROBERT PEEL happened to dine on Sunday last with his uncle, who is Minister of War. In the course of conversation the crazy Baronet intimated his intention of "having a turn" at the Whigs in the course of the debate. His caustic relative is said to have expressed a hope that he would not do so, inasmuch as though he might please ten, he would be sure to alienate twenty of his folk. Sir ROBERT said nothing at the time, but on rising from the table muttered to a friend, "I think I must pay the General off for that;" and accordingly he made a speech last night which was vehemently in support of Lord JOHN'S resolution. On the whole, about thirty Liberals voted with Ministers. Of these, ten were Catholic members for Irish constituencies. The scene of excitement during the division and immediately afterwards was almost indescribable, and the Speaker, who is a sensitive and nervous man, found it impossible for some time to hear the meaning of the various appeals made to him, and betrayed great uneasiness in his position.

It was understood that the adjournment of the House till Monday was meant to give time for consideration as to the course Ministers were to pursue, and to enable them to complete certain arrangements and make certain appointments previous to their vacating office. The Cabinet was held this morning, after which Lord Derby went to the Palace and tendered the resignation of himself and his colleagues. What is to follow no two persons are agreed.

If Lord JOHN RUSSELL be called on to form a Government, as is generally anticipated, his task will be beset by infinite embarrassments. The Palmerston Cabinet, with the exception of Sir CORNEWALL LEWIS and Lord PANMURE, are, it is understood, agreed to remain faithful to their late chief, and are resolved either to come in together or to stand aside. Lord CLARENDON, knowing that he is not likely to be asked, takes care to tell everybody that he would not, under any circumstances, act under Lord JOHN. Lord PALMERSTON himself would not, I have reason to think, make any personal difficulty about doing so; but the numerous section that adhere to him, and several of his late colleagues, deprecate strongly his accepting any secondary post. This counsel he might, perhaps, overrule, but he is not likely to desert those who have stuck to him in adversity. All this renders it no easy matter to find room for newer and more popular elements in the proposed administration, and yet without such the thing would be ridiculous and intolerable. There is, besides, an insuperable repugnance on the part of the more conservative Whigs to act with a man like Mr. BRIGHT; yet nothing is more certain than that if he be thrown over, after having cooperated efficiently in turning out the Tories, he will speedily find a way of helping to bring them in again.

The veteran negotiator in Cabinet-making, Mr. EDWARD ELLICE, has a plan, as usual, cut and dry. He would have Lord JOHN take a Peerage, and enter the Upper House as Premier, and give the lead of the Commons to Mr. SIDNEY HERBERT, filling up his Cabinet with such Peelite and Whig materials as he could find, and leaving out Cambridge House and Stafford House altogether; these latter to play the magnanimous, and support him during the rest of the session independently, in order to enable him to carry some some sort of Reform bill. But this is simply a plan to un-Whig and speedily destroy him. The exigency of circumstances might doubtless enable him to scramble through the remainder of the parliamentary year; but his government would have no party character, no internal cohesion, and no external support in the country that would enable him to make head against the Palmerstonians and Derbyites, between whom, in point of principle, no essential difference now remains. Sooner than bestride such a broomstick of a policy as this, I believe Lord JOHN would rather give up the task for the present, and allow Lord DERBY to reconstruct his Cabinet and bring in another bill, promising to aid him in carrying it. In this case it is understood that Mr. GLADSTONE would become Chancellor of the Exchequer and leader of the House of Commons. His speech in the recent debate defending nomination boroughs on the regular old Tory principles that were in vogue five-and-thirty years ago, strongly indicates the tendency of his ambition in such a direction. It is indeed incomprehensible how a man of his genius should go out of his way to theorize in the Tory sense about rotten boroughs, unless he had some object of ambition in view. Mr. DISRAELI would in that case go to India as Governor-General, the post of all others which he is known to covet.

The exchange of leaders would be a highly advantageous as well as agreeable one for the Conservative Party; and many disinterested onlookers believe that it would be about the best thing that could happen for the real interest of the Liberals.

Newspaper Accounts.

On the 31st ult. the debate on the Reform Bill was resumed, and the House of Commons presented a scene of great excitement, as it was generally believed that a vote would be taken on Lord JOHN RUSSELL'S resolution. 621 members were present, and the galleries were crowded. Sir ROBERT PEEL, Mr. ROEBUCK, and others spoke in opposition to the bill, and in favor of RUSSELL'S amendment, and Mr. DISRAELI wound up the debate with an elaborate and impressive speech in defence of the Government scheme and in denunciation of Lord RUSSELL'S unprecedented course, which, he claimed, prevented the discussion of the measure on its merits, and jumped at once to the details. Mr. DISRAELI'S remarks were listened to with great attention, and when he concluded the House divided, with the following result:

For the amendment	330
For the second reading of the bill	291
Majority against the Government	39

The announcement of the vote was received with vociferous cheers.

The resolution was then put as a substantive motion, when Mr. WYLD moved an amendment to it in favor of the ballot.

After tumultuous discussion, this proposition was negatived by a vote of 328 to 98. And the original resolution of Lord JOHN RUSSELL was carried without a division.

The House then, on motion of Mr. DISRAELI, adjourned till Monday the 4th.

Upon the division, the Globe says:

"The Liberal deserters to the Tory ranks numbered 35 (counting Liberals of all kinds.) The following are the names: W. B. Beaumont, J. Blake, Geo. Bowyer, John Brady, John Brocklehurst, J. M. Cobbett, Sir T. Colebrooke, M. E. Corbally, Joseph Crook, E. B. Denison, Lord Elcho, Sir A. Elton, Lord Euston, Sir R. Ferguson, A. S. Finlay, Hon. G. W. Fitzwilliam, W. J. Garnett, W. H. Gregory, J. H. Gurney, Thomson Hankey, J. I. Heard, Hon. G. Heathcote, Right Hon. E. Horsman, Lord Lincoln, Joseph Locke, E. MacEvoy, John Francis Maguire, Sir D. Jephson Norreys, J. H. Phillips, Sir A. Ramsay, J. Richardson, M. Tucker Smith, C. Tottenham, J. Stuart Wortley, and Marmaduke Wyvil. Of these seceders one is Mr. CROOK, who has on the paper a notice of motion in favor of manhood suffrage. The Conservative party numbered almost their full strength—about 256. Two Conservatives, Lord HORNBY and Capt. GRAY, voted against the second reading of the bill. The house mustered 626 members, including tellers, and the Speaker—we believe an unprecedented gathering, except that by which Mr. ABERCROMBY was elected Speaker by a majority of 317 to 310 over Mr. MANNERS SUTTON. In the great division which ejected Lord DERBY'S Government in 1852, the numbers were 305 to 286, or a house of 596, including tellers and Speaker.

In the House of Lords on the 1st inst., Lord STANLEY, of Alderley, asked whether any measures had been taken to procure the admission of salt from India into the Chinese Empire?

Lord MALMESBURY said that no instructions had been given to Lord ELGIN on the subject. Finding, however, that salt still continued a contraband article in China, recent instructions had been sent out for the purpose of obtaining some remission of the existing restrictions.

Lord DERBY said that he trusted the House would not construe his silence as to the important division which had taken place in the House of Commons into indifference; on the contrary, he regarded it as a most serious occurrence. It had rendered it necessary for him to meet his colleagues at an early hour that morning, and he had afterwards had an audience with her Majesty. He had not received the sanction of her Majesty to any course he might advise. The present state of affairs was so critical that he should best consult the convenience of their lordships and the gravity of the occasion if he postponed till Monday all further statements on the subject. On that day he hoped to lay before the House what advice, in a crisis of such importance, he and his colleagues had felt it their duty to lay before her Majesty, and the course which, with her Majesty's sanction, they proposed to adopt.

The House then adjourned.

Shortly after 10 o'clock on the morning of the 1st the Chancellor of the Exchequer left Grosvenor-gate, and proceeded to the residence of the Earl of DERBY, in St. James'-square. The right honorable gentleman remained in consultation until ten minutes to 12, when they left together, and walked across the Park to the Chancellor of the Exchequer's official residence, in Downing-street. At 12 o'clock a Cabinet Council was held, at which were present the Earl of Derby, the Marquis of Salisbury, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, General Peel, Lord Stanley, Mr. Sotheron Estcourt, Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, Lord John Manners, the Lord Chancellor, the Earl of Hardwicke, the Earl of Malmesbury, Sir John Pakington, and Lord Donoughmore.

During the whole of the morning the clubs were crowded with members of both Houses of Parliament, and other gentlemen who take an interest in political affairs. It is confidentially stated by all parties that the noble Earl will not venture upon a dissolution of Parliament, but that after the Cabinet has closed its sittings, he will proceed at once to Buckingham Palace, and announce to Her Majesty the resignation of his Administration. It is confidently stated that Lord JOHN RUSSELL will be sent for, and that he will at once consent to form an Administration, having Lord PALMERSTON as Foreign Secretary, Sir RICHARD BETHELL as Lord Chancellor, Sir JAMES GRAHAM as Home Secretary, Mr. MILNER GIBSON as President of the Board of Trade, and Sir G. C. LEWIS as Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. HEADLAM, Q. C., as Attorney-General, and Mr. EDWIN JAMES, Q. C., as Solicitor-General. In the event of this arrangement being carried out, there will be a double election for the borough of Marylebone, as Sir BENJAMIN HALL will doubtless be the First Commissioner of Works under any Liberal Administration that may be formed.

Various speculations were afloat in regard to the course Ministers would adopt, but it was supposed that nothing definite would transpire until Parliament reassembled on the 4th.

The Herald (Ministerial) remarks that, on taking office last year, Ministers were aware that, whenever their opponents thought fit to combine, they must be outnumbered. Under these circumstances the defeat can scarcely be considered important. Ministers possess the confidence both of Parliament and the country. Many of those who supported this factious motion declared in explicit terms that anything was preferable to the return to power of either Lord J. RUSSELL or Lord PALMERSTON.

The Daily News says that the pertinacity with which he Chancellor of the Exchequer defended the bill, would countenance the expectation that either a dissolution of Parliament, or a resignation of Ministers, was more likely than the introduction of a new bill by the present Government.

The Gazette announces that the Queen has appointed Lords CANNING and ELPHINSTONE Knights Grand Cross of the Bath.

The London Times announces the creation of three new peers, and says it is a very legitimate act on the part of Lord DERBY before resigning office to recommend to the Queen certain gentlemen of his own party for election to the peerage. The new peers are Sir CHAS. MORGAN, of Tredegar; Mr. EGERTON, of Tatton, Cheshire; and Col. GEORGE WYNDHAM, of Petworth. There was also to be a promotion of Lord DERBY'S followers to the ranks of the Baronetcy. The following names have been mentioned in the latter connection: The Chancellor of the Exchequer, (Mr. Disraeli,) Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Sotheron Estcourt, Col. Taylor, Col. Forrester, and Mr. William Deedes.

STATE OF THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

Aspects of the Peace Congress—Visit of Count Cavour to Paris—An Austrian Semi-official Commentary—A Russian Declaration of Sympathy for France.

A dispatch from Paris states that, according to reliable intelligence, the Austrian Government had refused the proposition that Baden should be the place of meeting for the proposed Congress. The French Government is said to have consequently left the choice of the town to Austria, reserving only the condition that it must be in communication with Paris by railway and telegraph.

The Dresden Journal states that the five Powers may be regarded as having agreed to the preliminaries of the Congress, that the day of meeting will probably be April 30, but that the place of meeting remains unsettled.

A dispatch from Paris, dated Friday, the 1st, says: "The following is the present position of political affairs: Piedmont is not to be admitted into the Congress as one of the great Powers, Austria and Russia having formally protested against her admission on any other terms than those allowed to the Italian States. The same two Powers have also demanded that Piedmont should not be suffered to enter the Congress immediately on its commencement, and, as a matter of course, should only be permitted to take part in the deliberations when called upon to do so.

The preliminary conditions on which Austria insists render it even doubtful whether the Congress will be feasible, one of the conditions being that Piedmont should disarm, which she positively refuses to do.

The Paris letter-writers were mainly engrossed with speculations as to Count CAVOUR'S visit and its consequences. He is reported to have reached Paris full of doubt and misgivings, but after his interview with the Emperor he became quite buoyant, and according to rumor had declared that he had then no apprehension of the future, and in fact that he was "master of the situation." CAVOUR was believed to be bent on war, and it was reported that he would not leave Paris till the admission of Piedmont to the Congress was settled one way or the other.

The review of the army of Paris had been definitely fixed for Sunday, the 3d April. All the regiments would be complete, every recruit having been called in.

It is said that all officers in Paris on leave of absence had received orders to join their regiments.

The Paris Siecle suggests that the question of war or peace should be submitted to the vote of the nation. It argues:

"It would be very easy to ascertain whether the real public opinion does not imperiously demand the triumph of French interests over Austrian interests. Let an appeal be made to the nation; let, for instance, the Legislative Corps be dissolved, and it would be seen, provided the electoral field were left free, that not a deputy would be elected without having made a clear and candid profession of faith in favor of Italy against Austria. Or let a plebiscitum be submitted to the French people—who, after all, is sovereign—to ascertain whether it desires that Italy should be abandoned; its reply would be unanimous. It is our duty to prevent error from being spread without contradiction. In the name of our country, we protest against those who seek to falsify public opinion. The country is entirely in favor of the emancipation of Italy and of the humiliation of Austria. At the proper moment it would prove this by its energy and sacrifices; it would not contradict its entire history for the pleasure of a few Bourse speculators, of a few religious fanatics, and of the two or three survivors of the various systems of policy to which France has successively been subjected."

The Italian refugees in Paris had, by deputation complimented M. CAVOUR, and assured him of their sympathy for his cause. M. CAVOUR received the deputation very graciously and assured them that he was perfectly satisfied with the result of his visit to Paris.

The Paris correspondent of the Daily News says that notwithstanding the accelerated and notorious preparations for war, the French journals have greatly moderated their tone, and that this has been done on an invitation from the Minister of the Interior.

PROBABILITIES OF THE CONGRESS.

The Paris correspondent of the Times writes, March 29:

"I cannot say that much is hoped from the Congress. The reason is simply this: The annexation of Lombardy is the real and only object Piedmont has at heart. Austria, it may be presumed, will refuse to listen to any such proposition; and NAPOLEON III., whose Imperial crown is a permanent protest against these treaties, will hardly consent to ratify them if they are once called in question. Be this as it may, M. CAVOUR returns to Turin more contented than when he left it; but if he is satisfied with the Emperor he is quite the contrary with the Ministers. M. WALEWSKI says that he will be one of the Plenipotentiaries at the Congress. M. THOUVENEL, or M. DE BOURQUENEY, or M. DROUYN DE LHUYS, is spoken of for the second. The manful stand made by M. WALEWSKI against the adventurous policy which France condemns might lead one to conclude that the views of the Plenipotentiary will be those of the Minister. This, however, does not necessarily follow in the present case. M. DELANGLE, for instance, is the most pacific of all possible Ministers; and yet in his circular to the Prefects (a second circular, the existence of which I doubted, was not, I am assured, ever issued) he spoke as if the war trumpet was no stranger to his lips. M. WALEWSKI'S continuance in office, notwithstanding the divergence of opinion from his master, is not extraordinary under the circumstances; but it would be strange if he were forced to do at Baden, or wherever the Congress is to be held, what he has opposed in Paris.

"In the meantime there is a movement in the department of the army. Troops are expected from Algeria, though that Territory cannot be left totally without protection. I am told that the regiments at home have orders for a fourth battalion; that is to say, in place of two war battalions, they are to have their last, the fourth, remaining in dépôt."

The well-informed and accurate correspondent of the Globe says, in his letter of March 27:

"Whatever may be the amount of delusion in London as to the hope of peace from the Baden Baden Congress, such hallucination does not exist at Vienna, nor at Turin nor at Paris. The whole object of Russia, in perfect understanding with France, is here believed to put Austria completely in the wrong, by eliciting a formal exhibition of the obstinacy which hitherto was only felt in the subdued intercourse of hidden diplomacy. So little does the Emperor here count on obtaining the slightest concession from Count BUOL that the French Ambassador accredited to the Court of Vienna, M. DE BOURQUENEY, does not think it worth while resuming his post and is gone to enjoy perfect leisure at his chateau near Blois, the business of the Embassy being left to an attaché, M. DE BANNEVILLE. The arrogant tone of the Court organs (Gazette d'Autriche and Ost Deutsche Post) is such a flagrant obstacle to any chance of agreement that Le Memorial Diplomatique, the Paris organ of Austria, is instructed to rebuke its Vienna collaborators, and to denounce the insulting language used against France as well as Piedmont."

The correspondent of the News writes on the 29th:

"The general feeling to-day is one of great uneasiness. It is openly said in the antechambers of the Tuileries that war is inevitable. The hangers-on of Government boast in an insolent tone of the alliance between France and Russia, and threaten all Europe. A few Russian regiments in echelon on the Prussian frontier, would, they say, be quite sufficient to keep all Germany in awe, while France was pursuing her victorious career in Italy."

Notwithstanding the accelerated and notorious preparations for war, the French journals have greatly moderated their tone. The explanation of this phenomenon is found in the following paragraph published by the Indépendance of Brussels:

The chief editors of the Paris journals received a notice two days back that the Minister of the Interior would receive them at 9 o'clock the next morning. All were punctual, and being introduced, one after another to the Minister, heard from him that he had sent for them, not to give them orders, but a friendly counsel as to the conduct which the Press would do well to observe under existing circumstances. When the great Powers were about to assemble in Congress to deliberate on the measures best calculated to secure the maintenance of peace, the Press, he thought, would do well to abstain from any irritating discussion on the questions which were pending, and from attacks against any of the Powers forming part of the Congress. M. DELANGLE concluded by observing that, in giving his recommendation, he only appealed to the patriotism of the French journalists.

AN AUSTRIAN COMMENTARY.

The Ost. Deutsche Post, of Vienna, considered a semi-official organ, contains the following:

The invitation given to Count CAVOUR to visit Paris is the subject of political conjectures of all kinds, the general supposition being that it is connected with the participation of Sardinia in the Congress. We know not whether it be true that France supports the admission of Sardinia; but however that may be, we are firmly convinced that Austria will never consent that Sardinia shall thus enter into the circle of the great Powers. As is already well known, Austria laid down as the first condition of her consent to the Congress that Sardinia should disarm. The cabinet of Vienna having given to the great powers a formal assurance that she had no intention of attacking Piedmont, there is no longer any motive for the latter to assemble troops, to form free corps, &c. Behind all that lies concealed the idea of preparing arms for the revolutionists, and of invading at a given moment the territory of her neighbor. Under these threatening circumstances it is impossible that Austria can enter into a Congress. Diplomatic negotiations of this kind ordinarily last for a long time. Must Austria during that period have an army always ready? Can the great Powers deliberate in peace when they will be incessantly under the menace of a war which may break out at any moment in Italy? The disarming of Sardinia ought then to take place before the meeting of the Congress. That disarming is not a question to be decided in the Congress, but a preliminary condition of its being held—a condition which all those who sincerely desire peace will find just and reasonable, especially as Austria will disarm her troops in the same proportion. When Sardinia shall have returned to her normal state, the Congress may meet and deliberate on the questions in dispute. The Congress of Aix-la-Chapelle prescribes that all the States whose interest may be debated in a Congress shall be heard. If, then, the interests of Sardinia be touched on, she will be invited to the Congress; as will also Tuscany, Naples or Parma, if the interests of those States be concerned. But with what right does Sardinia put forth the pretension of taking her place among the great Powers? In the Congress of Paris, we can understand that she should have figured, because she took part in the war in the Crimea. That was not, however, a happy thing for the country, for it has excited the ambition of its Government. Is it desired to render permanent that unreasonable ambition? The admission of Sardinia as a sixth great Power would be with reason considered by the other States of the same rank as an alteration of their European position. Why Sardinia? Why not Bavaria or Sweden, which are not inferior to her in power and extent? Why not Spain, which is superior to her in every way? Would this preference be given to Piedmont as a reward for her revolutionary policy, or would it have for object to secure beforehand a double vote to France? Austria has given her consent to a Congress of the Great Powers. If it be sought to bring Piedmont into it, the former will be released from her word. Austria certainly has not consented without some difficulty, but she has made the sacrifice in order to show that she would not be an obstacle to the peace of Europe; but the preliminary conditions must be accomplished. The Congress is not, therefore, possible, unless Sardinia commences by disarming, otherwise the meeting would only be a chimera or a snare.

RUSSIA DENOUNCING THE POSITION OF AUSTRIA.

The St. Petersburgh Gazette, of March 20, speaking as the organ of Russian opinion on the present state of Europe, takes ground openly in favor of France and Italy, and against Austria in the strongest terms:

"The writer sets forth by stating that the Italian question cannot be much advanced by any concessions that Austria will make. In order, he contends, to deliver Europe permanently from the threat of conflagration and continued troubles, it is absolutely requisite 'to take the bull by the horns,' and to get the Austrians out of Lombardy. All milder measures, such as the recalling of garrisons, internal reforms, or the quashing of private treaties, are mere palliatives. The article proceeds:

'Let us admit that Austria consents to create a danger at home, and will grant political rights to Lombardy, what will result therefrom? First of all Hungary, then Bohemia and the Sclavonic provinces, will desire to be treated no less favorably than Italy, and by their own agitation will aggravate the internal dissensions of Europe. Austria has heaped up the measure of Italy's patience by her political conduct for these five-and-forty years: she can no longer hope to acquire any sympathy there, and, should she take the path of concessions, the demands made will increase to the maximum of the question, which is the complete independence of Italy.'"

This proposition is followed by an extension of the same line of argument, to the effect that by permitting Austria conditionally to occupy Italy, "you grant her the time, and even the right, to set about the enslavement of the Peninsula." Lord COWLEY'S mission, says the writer, will have no success, from the fact that the Italian question involves as a starting point the idea of independence. The article concludes thus:

"Moreover, let us not forget that the Emperor of the French has gone too far to recede; it would be an act incompatible with his character and dignity were he to do so. Let us also remember that if, at the commencement of the present century, France, notwithstanding her revolution, and her want of money and men, was able to make head against the whole of Europe, what would she not be capable of achieving when she is accompanied by the visible sympathy of Russia, and of every noble heart that desires the welfare of humanity.

Such being the state of things, only a strong and good will is wanting for Austria to remain hereafter nothing more than a poignant historical recollection in the memory of Italy."

This article has produced a very strong impression at Paris, because it argues a foregone conclusion on the part of France and Russia, pursuant to some secret understanding which must have been come to long ago.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The British revenue returns for the quarter ending March 31 show a decrease of £820,000 upon the corresponding quarter of last year, which is more than accounted for by the reduction in the income tax. The result on the whole financial year is a net decrease of £2,400,000. But for the falling off of nearly £5,000,000 in the income tax there would have been a positive increase in the revenue of £2,500,000. The Customs returns show an increase on the year of fully £1,000,000.

The trial of 15 persons charged with being members of the Phenix Club—an illegal society—commenced at Belfast on the 31st; and in Kerry the second trial of DANIEL SULLIVAN (the Jury being unable to agree on the first occasion) was again in progress.

The visit of Signor GAVAZZI to the town of Galway, where the population is almost exclusively of the Roman Catholic persuasion, has been followed by a very disgraceful outbreak of religious fanaticism, which at one time assumed a very alarming aspect, and it appears that up to an advanced hour yesterday evening the excitement had not altogether subsided. The annexed account of the riots is published in the Vindicator, a Roman Catholic paper:

"The Italian lecturer arrived here yesterday. The nature of his opinions, or assumed opinions, and mission, may be guessed from this fact: that he was received by the ultra-Protestant saint, BROWNRIGG. He lectured in the evening at the school in Merchants' road. The subject, of course, was Italy and the Papacy, and the usual ardent declamation marked his discourse. His auditory was of the lowest class, and a considerable number of boys who assembled in the neighborhood of the conventicle kept up a chorus of shouting. This day the apostle of discord proceeded through the city, accompanied by Mr. BROWNRIGG, and met with rather a warm reception. This region is much too Catholic for these brothers. The saints were roughly handled, and GAVAZZI was obliged to take refuge in the Police barracks.

4 o'clock P. M.—The excitement has by this time risen to a high pitch among the lower order of the populace, and a number of Protestant clergymen and Scripture-readers who were assembled with GAVAZZI were hooted and pelted at with stones, sods of turf, and every description of missiles. The Rev. Messrs. ASHE, CALDWELL, LEWIS and M'MANUS received very severe treatment. A Scripture-reader, named O'CONNOR, received two blows from stones on the head, from which he is bleeding profusely; he took refuge in a shop, but the cries of the mob were so vollent that he was ejected into the street, and under the shelter of a single Policeman ran for his life to the Police barrack, where he is receiving medical attendance. The Rev. Mr. CALDWELL, who was with him, ran off though the crowd, and, getting a little in advance of them, found shelter within the county gaol. In the meantime, GAVAZZI, who had taken shelter somewhere that no one knew where but himself, issued forth, and, accompanied by a clergyman, made a race out towards the west for the residence of the Rev. Mr. BROWNRIGG, and was hotly pursued by the great body of the infuriated crowd; but he had made his appearance in retreat before they had heard of it. As soon as they did, they rushed down in that direction, but by the judicious arrangements of the police authorities they were effectually cut off from pursuing him, which if they had succeeded in doing, the results would have been desperate, if not fatal. Forty policemen, with fixed bayonets, were drawn across the end of Dominick-street, adjoining Bridge-street, one facing in the direction of Claddagh, to prevent the wild denizens of that locality from joining the populace in town; the other facing into town, to prevent the pursuit of GAVAZZI. Fortunately the wooden bridge was closed of access to the west, the draw-bridge being out of repair, and it is thought GAVAZZI is safe by this hour we write. The Rev. Mr. MAUSELL escaped without hurt, though he was obliged to be escorted home by Sergeant MULVILLE. Where all the others have taken shelter we have not ascertained. The disturbance seems now nearly over, at the hour we are going to press, but the excitement continues very high."

BELFAST, Friday Night.—The Jury in the sedition trials are unable to agree upon a verdict and are now locked up.

TRALEE, Friday.—DANIEL SULLIVAN has been found guilty and sentenced to 10 years penal servitude.

A fearful explosion had taken place at CURTIS & HARVEY'S gunpowder works at Hounslow, near London. Seven men were instantly killed and many more were wounded.

The City of Baltimore brought out a late telegram briefly announcing that the Marquis of WATERFORD had been killed while hunting. The catastrophe occurred near Carrick-on-Suir, Kilkenny. The Marquis' horse fell at a small fence, and he was thrown with no great apparent violence upon his head. He was, however, found to be unconscious and died in about ten minutes. He left no issue and is succeeded in his vast estates by his brother, the Rev. Lord JOHN BERESFORD.

FRANCE.

The official monthly return of the price of wheat throughout France shows the average to have been 15f. 17½c. per hectolitre, being a decline of 6¾c. on the average of the previous month.

A second division of the army of Algeria was shortly expected to arrive at Marseilles.

The Paris Bourse on the 30th and 31st was dull and rather lower, but on the 1st it became excited and firm at an advance of ⅜ per cent. The 3 per cents. closed at 68.50 for money and 68.45 for account.

Count CAVOUR left Paris for Turin on the 30th.

PRUSSIA.

Advices from Berlin state that the Prussian Government intends demanding from the Chambers a credit of twelve millions of thalers for increasing the navy and improving the defences of the coasts of the Baltic and of the North Sea.

RUSSIA.

The Russian soldiers on leave of absence are all reported to have been recalled.

TURKEY.

Constantinople journals confirm the statement that 20 battalions of troops and 80 guns had been dispatched to Shumla, and that another division would follow.

The Grand Vizier was very ill and his retirement was expected.

INDIA AND CHINA.

The details of the news received by the mails from Calcutta of the 24th February, and from Hong Kong to the 15th of February, add little of interest to the telegraphic accounts already published.

The United States frigate Germantown and the steamers Powhatan and Mississippi were at Hong Kong.

In the exports of tea from China to the United States there was an increase of 500,000 pounds over the same date last year.

The financial embarrassment of the Government is the principal topic of news from India.

COCHIN CHINA.

The accounts are to Jan. 30. The French Admiral had proceeded with the flotilla to commence operations in the south, and it was said that he intended to attack Saigan, a town which is regarded as the granary of the country, on account of the large trade in rice carried on from it to China. Hene was to be beseiged as soon as the expected reinforcements arrived.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

On Wednesday, the 30th March, the Stock Exchange exhibited a dull and drooping tendency, but without material change in quotations. On the 31st the market continued heavy and Consols gave way ⅛ per cent. On the 1st of April the market was steady, notwithstanding the Government defeat. Consols closed at 95⅜@95⅝ for money and account.

Money was in fair demand at previous rates.

The Alliance (French and English) Bank was in course of being wound up. It was said that Mr. SMOKES, the gérant had departed for America, and that the accounts were in confusion, but that all creditors would be paid.

The Bank of England had lost £234,065 in specie during the week.

BARING BROS. & Co. quote Bar Silver at 5s. 2⅝d.; Dollars, 5s. 2¼d.; American Eagles, 76s. 3½d.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday, April 2.

COTTON—The Brokers' Circular says: "There has been a good steady demand from the trade, as well as on speculation and by export, throughout the week; holders, however, have met it freely at the full rates of last Friday." Brazilian and Egyptian has advanced ⅛d.@¼d. Some circulars quote a partial advance in American descriptions of 1-16d.@⅛d. P lb., with a good demand for the better qualities. The business of the week has been 63,260 bales, including 9,070 on speculation, and 10,070 for export. At Manchester the market was quiet, but without material change. Good qualities of Yarn were firm, but inferior, as also Indian goods had a declining tendency.

BREADSTUFFS—Messrs. RICHARDSON, SPENCE & Co. report continued dullness in the Corn trade. At yesterday's market here there was the merest retail business done in all articles, without change in quotations, which are as follows: Flour, 10s.@12s. 3d.; Wheat—Red Western, 3s. 9d.@9s. 4d.; White, 8s. 7d.@10s.; Southern, 10s.@10s. 9d. PROVISIONS.—Beef is firm at an advance of 2s. 6d.@5s. The best qualities continue scarce and would bring extreme rates. Pork dull. Sales of "Van Brunt's" at 72s. 6d. Bacon unchanged. Very little inquiry for American. Lard—Nothing doing and quotations nominal. Tallow in limited demand at former prices.

PRODUCE—The Brokers' and other circulars report: Ashes in moderate request at 29s. 6d.@30s. for Pots, and 31s. 6d. for Pearls. Sugar unchanged, but firmer at the close. Coffee scarce and firm. Rice in steady demand, and the recent improvement is fully maintained. Tea quiet but steady. Bark—Retail sales of Philadelphia at 9s.@10s., and Baltimore at 8s. Clover Seed quiet, but firm at the close. Linseed Oil in better request at former rates. Fish Oils quiet. Resin—Sales of the week 3,700 bales, at 4s. 6d.@4s. 8d. for Common, and 15s. for Fine. Spirits Turpentine steady at 41s.@41s. 6d.

LONDON MARKETS.

FISH OILS firm; Sperm scarce at £100. LINSEED OIL steady at 29s. RICE very dull.

HAVRE MARKET.

[Week ending March 29, inclusive.]

COTTON active and fully 1@2 francs higher; sales of the week 14,200 bales, the market closing firm at 107 for Orleans tres ordinaire and 102 for bas. Stock on hand 147,400. BREADSTUFFS dull and favoring buyers. ASHES—Pots further advanced to 44f.@44 25f.; Pearls dull. COFFEE very animated and decidedly dearer. OILS in limited demand at previous prices. RICE in less request, but steady. SUGAR dull and prices barely maintained. TALLOW and LARD dull and unchanged.

AMERICAN SECURITIES.

Messrs. D. BELL, SON & Co., report as follows:

"We have no change to notice in the market for American Securities; transactions during the week have been only to a very limited extent, and those chiefly in the Federal 5 ₰ cent. Bonds, at the price of 94@94¾.

The Times, of Friday, says: "In American Securities a further decline of $1 occurred in the shares of the Illinois Central, and quotes sales at 38½ dis.

THE LATEST PER EUROPA.

The Political Crisis.

LONDON, Saturday, April 2, 1859.

The Times says it was stated last night that in a very high quarter there existed a very strong feeling that a general election was a proper solution of the difficulty. The plea may be that the Parliament, which reforms itself, should be elected for the express purpose, and that so great a responsibility should be thrown on the constituent body; but thus far the present House has shown itself quite as competent to discuss and settle the question as any other House that might be returned. A general election is always an evil. It will be a great evil now without a necessity, without a reason, with hardly a pretence. It is stated, indeed, that, giving way apparently to resentment, Ministers are resolved to stand their ground till placed in a minority on a direct question of confidence, and in that case to appeal to the people. In other words, that they will not resign without a dissolution.

The Daily News says that a meeting of Lord DERBY'S supporters has been summoned for 1 o'clock today. It conjectures that Her Majesty must have assigned some special ground for hesitating to accept the resignation of Ministers, as there are probably few things which the Court is less disposed to view with favor than a dissolution of Parliament on any real party question.

The Daily News asks if Lord DERBY is prepared to tell his followers that, on the morrow of his defeat he placed his resignation in the hands of Her Majesty; that for reasons he will in due time disclose, he has consented to reassume the reins of power, but that to do so with dignity he must have an assurance from them that they would support him in a second attempt to legislate on the subject of Reform, with a view to which certain modifications of the existing Cabinet will be indispensable; and finally, should he be again intercepted, he is prepared at once to appeal to the country.

The Morning Post thinks it probable that Lord DERBY has not yet resigned his office, and equally probable that if he has suggested a dissolution to the Queen, that his proposition has been deemed undesirable in the present state of affairs. The Post says it will not be surprised if the noble Lord makes an appeal to his party to continue their support to him, and if he deem the critical state of Europe a sufficient justification for not hastily relinquishing office.

The Morning Star presumes it is scarcely possible after DISRAELI'S speech, that the present Government would undertake another Reform bill, framed so as to satisfy the conditions of Lord JOHN RUSSELL'S resolution. Unless the House be contented to take the course of supporting a Government without any reform at all, it cannot see that their retention of office is possible for the present Ministers. The members of the Carlton Club are said to have already declared against a dissolution, and it may be Full-sized Paper Patterns, cut out ready for use, of the latest novelties, are given with each number; they are by one of the most eminent designers and cutters of ca'ers; they are all warranted, and form a strong contrast to those given in other works.

This Magazine contains eight pages of descriptive letter-press, of the greatest utility to those interested in Fashions.

PRICE FOUR DOLLARS PER YEAR, OR FIFTY CENTS PER NUMBER.

THE WORLD OF FASHION arrives by the steamer leaving Europe on or after the first of each month—arriving here generally about the 15th. To secure it regularly it should be subscribed for by the year.

Ocean Mails.

The European Mails, by the steamship Canada, from Boston for Liverpool, will close at the New-York Postoffice to day, April 19, at 1½ o'clock to go by railroad, and at 4 to go by steamboat.

Notice.

We are compelled this morning, in order to publish even the most essential features of the news which our readers have a right to expect, to omit over four columns of advertisements which are in type for this morning's paper. Those persons whose notices are thus omitted, may receive back the money they have paid, by applying at the counter in the TIMES Publication Office.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The steamship Europa, of the Cunard line, from Liverpoool on the morning of the 2d inst., arrived here yesterday. The news is of unusual importance. In the House of Commons on the 31st ult. the debate upon the Reform bill was closed, the division both upon Lord JOHN RUSSELL'S resolutions and upon the Second Reading resulting adversely to the Ministry. It was not known what course Lord DERBY would take. He announced on the 1st inst. in the House of Lords that on the 4th inst. he would make known his resolution definitely; and in the meantime both Houses adjourned. The impression seemed current that he would not resign, and possibly might endeavor to proceed without a dissolution The War question had assumed a less encouraging aspect. There seemed to be a general distrust of the efficacy of a Congress to close the Italian issue; and indeed such were the preliminary demands of Austria, and such the attitude of Russia, that it appeared questionable whether any Congress would assemble. The impression had gained ground everywhere, except in England, that the action of Russia and of France in proposing and accepting the idea of a Congress, had been the result of a shrewd understanding, by which Austria was to be forced into a false position; and the responsibility of a war transferred from LOUIS NAPOLEON to FRANCIS JOSEPH. In the meantime, the armaments were urged indefatigably; and the excitement in Italy was approaching a crisis which war alone can relieve. The general news from the continent is of secondary moment.

The Cass-Yrissan Treaty, as amended by the Senate of Nicaragua, has not yet received the approval of the President. Secretary CASS has expressed to the Nicaraguan Minister his willingness to acquiesce in the modifications, but referred him to the President, in whom was vested the power of acceptance or rejection. Mr. BUCHANAN, after a careful examination of what is known as the "additional" article, which relates to the suppression of filibustering expeditions, declined giving it his approbation, preferring to suspend judgment until the arrival of Minister LAMAR, who is expected in Washington on the 28th inst.

By the arrival of the schooner F. Taft, Captain BUNKER, from Savannah la Mar, Jam., which port she left March 27, we learn that the insurrection among the negroes had been put down. A British steamer had arrived, and landed 380 troops for the protection of the inhabitants and their property. The objectionable toll-gates had not yet been rebuilt, but at a meeting of the Magistrates, held 26th, it was decided that it should be done at an early day. The ringleaders in the late affair had not been arrested. The port was quite healthy.

In the Sickles case yesterday, Judge CRAWFORD rendered his decision in favor of the admissibility of testimony proving habitual adultery on the part of Mr. KEY and Mrs. SICKLES. This evidence, he declared, should be admitted as explaining the declaration of the prisoner at the time of the killing—"He has defiled my bed." The testimony taken, including that of Mrs. NANCY BROWN, was mainly cumulative as to the fact of habitual adultery. Mrs. BROWN testified that she had repeatedly seen Mr. KEY and Mrs. SICKLES enter the house in Fifteenth-street, and asserted of her own knowledge that no other parties were ever in the house. Her cross-examination only tended, if possible, to make her testimony stronger. Hon. JOHN B. HASKIN testified to having visited Mr. SICKLES' house in 1858, during the absence of the latter, and to finding KEY and Mrs. SICKLES together in the study, with champagne, glasses, &c., on the table at which they were seated. Mr. HASKIN was the last witness examined. Judge CRAWFORD, at the opening of the Court dismissed the Grand and Petit juries for two weeks, which is considered as an indication of a belief on the part of the Court that the trial will occupy until that time.

The deputation of Winnebago Indians in Washington have nearly completed the purpose of their mission, and will soon return to their homes in Minnesota. They claim an award of bounty lands for certain warriors of the tribe, who rendered military service to the Government. Commissioner MIX has engaged to institute a search for documentary evidence in their favor.

There was very little disposition manifested yesterday by the Legislature to adjourn. In the Senate, a concurrent resolution was moved to terminate the session at 8 o'clock P. M. to-day, but it was lost. The Senate failed to pass the Interest bill over the Governor's veto, the vote being 13 to 14, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table. The New-York Charter bill came up for a third reading, and was defeated for want of a constitutional majority. In the Assembly, the Pro Rata Freight bill was reported from the Grinding Committee, but the House refused to receive the report. All the Senate's amendments to the New-York Tax Levy were non-concurred in, and a Committee of Conference was appointed. A long debate took place on the item in the Supply bill, inserted by the Senate, appropriating $250,000 for the removal of Quarantine.

The Attorney-General has returned to Washington, to resume the duties of his office.

Bishop DOANE of New Jersey lies dangerously ill at his residence in Burlington, and fears are entertained that he cannot recover.

Murderous riots among the firemen of Philadelphia are of so common occurrence as hardly to excite remark in that city. One of a more than ordinarily serious character, however, occurred on Sunday, in which two or three individuals were shot, probably fatally. The riot grew out of the old grudge between the Shiffler and the Moyamensing Hose Companies. One of the men shot was ROBERT THOMPSON, Secretary of the Moyamensing Hose, and another was JOHN CAPIE, a runner with the Shiffler. A desperate fight occurred on the same day between the Reliance Engine and the Humane Hose Companies, in which several persons were very badly hurt. The police succeeded in arresting some half-dozen of the leaders.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday adopted the report of the Committee on Printing and Stationery, to which was referred the subject of inquiring as to the nature of judgments in the tax levy. The Committee has found in the tax levy many judgments obtained against the City which, if just, the Committee says, are county charges. Many of them have been pronounced unjust claims—among them the heavy bills for Stationery and Printing of MCSPEDON & BAKER, which drew forth so much comment when they were first presented. The judgments of this character in the tax levy, reported by the Committee, amount to $24,618 62. Appended to the report was a resolution directing that counsel be engaged to make an application to the various courts for the purpose of reopening the cases where judgments have been obtained against the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City and which are applicable alone to the County, and that $500 be appropriated therefor.

At the meeting of the Board of Councilmen last evening a protest was received from the Third-avenue Railroad Company against the passage of an ordinance directing that Belgian pavement should be laid in that avenue from Sixth-street to Sixty-first-street, and that one third the expense should be assessed on the Company. They deny that any part of their charter obliges them to pave streets through which their cars run, and say that they will resist legally the payment of any assessment to defray the expense of doing the work. A number of unimportant reports in favor of repairing fire apparatus and engine houses were adopted. A Committee consisting of Councilmen OTTARSON, VAN TINE and JONES were appointed to confer with the Quarantine and Sanitary Convention which meets in this City the 26th inst.

At a special meeting of the Police Commissioners, held yesterday, General-Superintendent TALLMADGE sent in a letter of resignation, which was accepted. The leading motive inducing to this step he gives is a disinclination to fill an office where he is but little more than a machine, which he considers has been his position under the Commissioners. The Board appointed him their counsel.

Yesterday, 2,100 bales Cotton were sold at unchanged rates. Flour, Wheat and Corn were moderately dealt in. Prices were essentially unaltered, save for Southern Flour, which advanced a shade. Pork was more sought after, while Beef was less active. Lard was in fair demand. The sales of Groceries included 1,100 mats Java Coffee at 14¼c. @14¾c.; 2,000 bags Maracaibo do., for export, on private terms; with 975 hhds. and 346 ceroons of Sugar at steady quotations. Molasses and Rice were in moderate request. Fish and Linseed Oils were inquired for. Naval Stores were rather quiet. The movements in other branches of trade were restricted.

The European Congress.

The halcyons must once more take wing; and the intelligent financiers who look to the movements of the European Governments for their inspiration in dealing with American interests, must once more begin to shorten sail.

Lord MALMESBURY'S proclamation of peace in the British House of Lords appears to have been as we suspected that it would prove to be, rather premature. It is true that Austria has consented to take into consideration the propriety of appearing in a Congress of the European States for the purpose of submitting her policy in Italy to inspection, criticism and revision. It is also true that England and Prussia urged her to make this concession to the cause of peace. But it is not true that the calling of the Congress in question has yet been definitely decided upon; or that Austria has shown any disposition to take the notion up in the only form in which it can be of practical use, and by applying it vigorously, impartially and unselfishly to the settlement of the Italian troubles, restore quiet to the Peninsula and confidence to Europe. On the contrary, as the real gravity of the issue gradually develops itself, and as the ulterior purposes of the two great Powers, Russia and France, which have taken upon them the duty of bringing this matter to a definite understanding, are more plainly revealed, the tone of the Austrian Court and Cabinet grows higher and more haughty, and never, at any moment, since the memorable first of January had the prospects of a pacific dénouement for the present European imbroglio seemed so faint and shadowy as in the few days preceding the departure of the steamer which yesterday reached us.

The serious and secret difficulty of this imbroglio, no Congress can deal with, for it is a curious feature of the Italian, as it was of the Eastern Question, that each of the parties involved has just enough of right on its side to make mutual concessions and mutual forbearance extremely awkward and impracticable. Thus, for example, Austria, while she has admittedly gone beyond the letter and violated the spirit of the European settlements of 1815, in her relations with the lesser Italian States, has done so in obedience to a logical necessity of the position created for her by those settlements. So, in like manner, France, while she is merely insisting on a policy which every great Power in turn has urged upon Austria, has been obliged in doing so, to lay down principles which both England and Prussia find themselves forced to regard with an uneasy jealousy of their possible application to the Mediterranean possessions of the one State, and the Polish provinces of the other. Austria cannot concede enough to reassure Europe without abdicating certain attributes of her sovereignty: and France cannot recede without stultifying not only her own traditional policy, but the traditional policy of all liberal Europe besides. This dangerous, and as we believe, decisive characteristic of the present European crisis, is admirably put in the extract which we give to-day from the Russian journal, the Gazette de St. Petersburg. In this article, which is especially remarkable as the most resolute and open declaration yet made of the Russian sympathy with France, the positive ejection of the House of Hapsburg from Italy, with all its consequences for the rest of the Empire of Austria, is plainly stated to be the inevitable result of the movement of Europe. The refusal of Austria to accede to a European Congress, or her refusal, in case such a Congress shall be held, to suffer it to pass upon the real case at issue, will force pacific England and uneasy Prussia to abandon her to her own resources. This contingency the Austrian Government already seems to anticipate, and this the ancient monarchy of MAXIMILIAN and MARIA THERESA seems resolved to meet, sword in hand, and with a fearless front. But the skillful diplomacy of France, and the sternly subtle hatred of Russia, are evidently preparing for FRANCIS JOSEPH a storm more overwhelming than that which fell upon NICHOLAS in the Crimea; and there can be little doubt that in the near European future the great Viennese despotism is about to pass between the upper and the nether millstone. The questions whether Italy is capable of a second resurrection, and whether Italians can administer their own governments, on their own soil, as successfully as men of their race have managed the affairs of other people in other lands, may then be submitted to the only satisfactory solution, in the crucible of actual experience.

HELP WANTED.—The Evening Post seems fatigued by its own industrious mendacity, and calls in the aid of a zealous accomplice. It quotes the following from some small sheet which it has the happiness of receiving:

"The NEW-YORK TIMES seems to have a general retainer on behalf of criminals. It is pleading for the pardon of Mrs. HARTUNG and the canonization of DAN SICKLES, with the same energy that it displayed in apologizing for Mrs. CUNNINGHAM and defending the prisoner STEPHENS."

We have never urged, asked or desired the "pardon" of Mrs. HARTUNG, but only that out of regard for common decency she should be imprisoned for life rather than hung. Our efforts for the "canonization of DAN SICKLES" have been limited to protests against the brutal ferocity with which the Post clamors for his blood, in advance of trial and on grounds of personal and political hatred without reference to the degree of his guilt. Our "apologizing for Mrs. CUNNINGHAM" consisted in remonstrances against the Post's high-toned attempt to make money by publishing reckless inventions about her life. And our "defence" of STEPHENS was simply an expression of surprise that with the evidence before them the Jury should have found him guilty. The Post's protégé is almost a match for the Post itself in the matter of calumnious inventions; and it has a thoroughly congenial passion for mangling the remains of the dead.

Our Mexican Relations.

Our new Minister to Mexico has made a capital beginning. He has shown that he understands the responsibilities of his position, and that he has the courage and the decision necessary to meet them. In the TIMES of yesterday we published the details of his recognition of the Juarez Government, including his address and the President's reply. Both documents were admirable in spirit and in tone. Mr. MCLANE made no officious tender of advice or opinions as to the internal affairs of Mexico. He simply indicated the recognition by the United States of JUAREZ as the rightful President of the Republic; expressed the friendly sentiments which prevail in this country towards Mexico, and tendered his cordial good wishes to President JUAREZ for a vigorous, prosperous and beneficent administration. The reply expressed the confidence of the Executive in the justice of the path upon which he has entered, and in the steady progress of the country towards peace and settled prosperity.

Our special Correspondent, to whom we are indebted for the early and exclusive possession of these important documents, cautions the American public, in the letter which we published yesterday, against expecting too great results from this step immediately. The country is still distracted, and the Liberal Party, by which JUAREZ is alone sustained, has much to do before it can obtain full and undisputed sway. But the moral support which has been given it by the United States will give it great strength, and encourage the great body of the substantial and influential classes in Mexico to rally to its support. It cannot be disguised, however, that the results of the steps already taken will depend, to a very great extent, upon the wisdom and prudence of our own Government. The recognition of JUAREZ unquestionably gives us claims upon his Administration and upon the country which both will willingly recognize. But our expectations must not be inordinate nor our demands unjust. It would be folly to expect that any Government in Mexico will admit American troops upon its soil,—and we have good reason to believe that President JUAREZ will refuse to sell any portion of the Mexican territory upon any terms, or to permit the establishment or occupation of forts within the limits of that Republic. We trust, therefore, that our Government will perceive the wisdom of not insisting upon any concessions of this kind. It is quite possible that we might obtain a grant of the right of way through Sonora,—and even permission for our troops to cross the Mexican boundary in pursuit of hostile Indians. But beyond this it would be neither wise nor prudent for us, under existing circumstances, to push our demands.

What we need most of all are closer commercial relations with Mexico, and a stable, permanent Government there which shall preserve order and secure American citizens in the enjoyment of their just rights. We need an equitable adjustment of our claims against the Government, protection for the Tehuantepec route, and a new commercial treaty with essential modifications of the existing tariff. These we can easily procure if we are wise enough not to be too exacting. The new President is a man of ability, an eminent lawyer, of unimpeachable integrity, and thoroughly enlightened and patriotic in his views of the policy which the welfare of his country requires. Mr. MCLANE has evinced admirable judgment and a wise decision of character in the prompt recognition of his Government.

PHILADELPHIA JEALOUSY.—The jealousy of Philadelphia has been excited by the circumstance of there being so many New-York lawyers engaged in the Sickles trial, while there is not one Philadelphian. The Evening Journal, published in that ambitious village, says:

"The correspondents of the New York papers mention with great fidelity every indication of applause, and are at much pains to inform the public of favorable opinions which prevail of the eloquence, &c., of the defendant's lawyers. Judging from the very full reports brought by telegraph, there would seem to be no occasion for all this laudation. Our ordinary trials elicit as good puns as Mr. Brady has yet made."

This is touching Philadelphia on one of her raw spots. She values herself as much on her puns and lawyers, as she has always done on her reedbirds and butter. If Mr. BRADY accidentally made a pun, he was not aware, we presume, that he would have the ill luck to excite the envy of his brethren of the bar in the right-angled city.

Resignation of General-Superintendent Tallmadge.

The Commissioners of Police held a secret session at 1 P. M. yesterday. The following laconic communication was received:

OFFICE OF GENERAL SUPERINTENDENT OF THE METROPOLITAN POLICE,
No. 413 Broome-street corner of Elm.
NEW-YORK, Monday, April 18, 1859.

To the President of the Metropolitan Board of Police Commissioners:

I hereby resign my position as General-Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police.

F. A. TALLMADGE.

The resignation was accepted, to take effect immediately.

Four patrolmen were dismissed from the Department for various causes. The above facts were given to our reporter by the chief Clerk. It was subsequently ascertained from a reliable source that a resolution was passed appointing Gen. T. the Counsel to the Board.

Gen. TALLMADGE stated that his reason for resigning was because the Commissioners usurped the executive control of the police, and made him "merely a conduit between themselves and the men for the transmission of orders."

The prominent candidates for the vacated office are said to be ex-Chief MATSELL, Deputy CARPENTER and Captains LEONARD and HART.

Academy of Music.

The accession of Signor STEFANI to the forces at the Academy was welcomed, last night, by a good house, superior in point of numbers to what was expectable at this season of the year. The opera of the "Traviata" went off with much spirit, Signor STEFANI dividing the applause with Mme. GAZZANIGA, and in point of fact receiving an encore in almost everything he sung. There is opportunity for the vigorous vocalization of this artist in the rôle of Alfredo. The orchestra was conducted by Mr. THOMAS—Mr. ANSCHUTZ being indisposed.

On Wednesday—the last night of the season—the "Favorita" will be given, with GAZZANIGA, STEFANI and MORELLI in the principal parts.

Sporting Matters.

Yesterday the Spring trotting season over the Union Course, L. I., was opened with a trot, in which Reliance, Senator, and Lady Finnegan, were entered for a purse of $50—mile heats; best 3 in 5, in harness, with the following result:

Reliance	1	2	1	1
Senator	2	1	2	2
Lady Finnegan	Distanced.

Time—2:37½; 2:45; 2:39½; 2:42½.

There was to have been a trotting and pacing match for $2 000—2-mile heats, in harness, between DARLING'S b. g. James Nixon, pacer, and SANDS' bay mare, trotter. DARLING received forfeit.

A Stockholm paper states that Jenny Lind intends to visit her native land during the Summer, and has purchased a small estate in the neighborhood of the capital.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Departure of Lord Napier—Refusal of the President to Approve the Cass-Yrissari Treaty—The Belly Contract Not Rejected—Increased Treasury Receipts, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, April 18.

Lord NAPIER left here this afternoon, and expects to sail with his family from Annapolis to-morrow. Lord LYONS took formal possession of the Legation to-day.

Secretary CASS, on reading the Cass-Yrissari Treaty as modified, promptly expressed to the Nicaraguan Minister his approval of it, but said it remained with the President to say whether it would be acceptable. It was immediately carried to Mr. BUCHANAN, who, having examined closely the additional article, with its modification, declined giving his approbation, saying that he would suspend judgment until General LAMAR arrived, he being expected here on the 28th inst.

The Treaty was objectionable in what is known as the "additional" article. This provided that "the United States shall enforce their Neutrality laws, and prevent any armed expedition from leaving their shores for the purpose of invading the soil of Nicaragua." This article presupposed a dereliction on the part of the United States in enforcing these laws. To this our Government objected. The clause now comes back so modified as to read, "The Government of the United States will do all in its power for the enforcement of her Neutrality laws, and the prevention of any armed expedition into Nicaragua." The clause without modification is similar to the Ouseley Treaty.

Señor PEREZ speaks in high terms of General LAMAR, and says that he possessed the respect and esteem of Nicaragua.

The Belly contract has not been rejected by Nicaragua, but the Senate was dissatisfied with some of its provisions.

The Paraguayan steamers will be ordered back to the United States to be coppered and repaired, after which they will be distributed among the Squadrons.

The Navy Board for examining the several Navy-yards reached Norfolk this morning, and will return here in a few days to make a partial report.

Surgeon BURNS, of the United States Army, has been tried by Court-martial for a violation of the Regulations, and the judgment of the Court was communicated to-day to the Secretary of War.

Secretary COBB says the Treasury receipts are far beyond the estimates, and as yet he has not found it necessary to touch a dollar of the Treasury notes authorized by the late law. Q.

The Fulton Passed Cape Race.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Monday, April 18.

A side-wheel steamship with three masts and two smoke stacks, passed Cape Race at 10 A. M., Sunday. It was undoubedly the U. S. Mail steamship Fulton, Capt. WOTTON, from Havre and Southampton 6th inst., and which will be due at New-York on Thursday next. The arrangements of the Associated Press, for boarding steamers off Cape Race, will go into effect early in May, after which it is confidently anticipated that the news will be procured from a large majority of the vessels passing that point.

Fire in New-Bedford.

NEW-BEDFORD, Monday, April 18.

A fire at an early hour this morning destroyed NASH'S carriage factory and the extensive stables of JOHN M. HATHAWAY and HATHAWAY and BAILAY on Elm-street. Horses and vehicles were saved. The City Library building received a slight damage.

BOSTON, Monday, April 18.

In addition to the stables destroyed by the fire in New-Bedford, this morning, were several wooden buildings on Mechanics-lane, occupied by blacksmiths, carpenters and machinists; also A. J. ADAMS' billiard and bowling saloon on Elm-street. Total loss about $30,000.

Overland Express to the Gold Regions.

LEAVENWORTH, K. T., Monday, April 18.

The first overland express left this city, to-day, for Denver City, with the mail. Its departure was witnessed by a large concourse of people. Two coaches of this line will leave here daily hereafter.

Some small parcels of gold dust were received here.

Governor MEDARY leaves, to-day, for Ohio.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE BOARD OF COUNCILMEN AND THE THIRD-AVENUE RAILROAD.—The Third-avenue Railroad Company sent to the Board of Councilmen, last evening, a protest against the passage of an ordinance directing that Belgian pavement should be laid in that Avenue from Sixth-street to Sixty-first-street, and that one-third of the expense be assessed on the Company. They deny that any portion of their charter obliges them to pave streets through which their cars run, and say they will resist, legally, the payment of any assessment to defray the expenses of the work.

SUICIDES AND DROWNINGS.—The body of JOHN W. HUGHES, a young man who had been missing for several weeks, was found yesterday in the East River. A severe wound was on one side of his head. SHIP-CARPENTERS' STRIKE.—Yesterday was the day fixed by the meeting of the ship-carpenters when the increase of wages should begin. A large portion of the employers have acquiesced in the demand ($2 25 per day) and there will be no occasion for a formal demonstration. The only difficulty complained of by either party is the little business doing.

"ANCIENT HIBERNIANS" CHARGED WITH OBSTRUCTING THE MAIL.—Warrants have been issued for the arrest of sundry persons who formed a portion of the procession of Ancient Hibernians, on Saturday afternoon, on a charge of having obstructed the mails while on their way from the Post-office to the New-Haven mail train.

AFFAIRS AT ALBANY.

Winding Up—The Interest Flagging—The Governor's Veto of the Interest Bill Sustained in the Senate—Conference Committees Appointed on the Appropriation Bill—The Supply Bill Still Behind—The Charter Moving—City Railroads at the Bottom—Prospects of Adjournment—Mary Hartung, &c., &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ALBANY, Monday, April 18, 1859.

There was an abundant quorum on hand this morning, and a disposition to pass some few bills in both Houses before taking up the Appropriation. Ineffectual efforts were repeatedly made to raise the City Sanitary measure, but it was too far down to be lifted. In Assembly the (Assembly) bill altering the Commissioners' map of Brooklyn, blotting out Reid-street between Osage and Van Brunt (it being 15 feet under water and within the Erie Basin) was lost, Ayes 50, Noes 29. The (Senate) bill requiring State officers to make their annual reports earlier in the year was passed, Ayes 76, Noes 9.

The Grinding Committee reported the pro rata freight bill—compelling railroads to carry freight at the same rates from any point within the State as they carry it through the State. After a brief but sharp debate the report of the Committee was disagreed to—Yeas, 45; Nays, 49—the railroads thus getting another victory.

After an hour spent on the Appropriation bill, refusing to concur in the Senate's amendments so far as the Pilot Commissioners are concerned, but otherwise swelling the amounts, the House non-concurred, and a Committee of Conference was appointed—spelling two days' work, and fetching the final adjournment closer.

If the Supply bill, when it comes down, is non-concurred in, an adjournment sine die is likely to take place to-night. The Charter and the railroads are all that are pulling back from the most desirable end now.

The Senate spent a couple of hours discussing the Interest veto, and then sustained the Governor, 13 voting to pass the bill over his veto, and 14 to sustain His Excellency, it requiring two-thirds of all present to override the veto. The motion was then made to reconsider, and it was tabled. On overriding the veto, the following Senators voted aye: Messrs. Ames, Foote, Hubbell, JOHNSON, Lafin, Lamont, Mather, Noxon, Patterson, Schell, Prosser, Scott, J. D. Willard.

The effort to fix 10 A. M. of Tuesday as the hour of final adjournment failed. Ayes, 11; noes, 15.

The Senate then passed the following Assembly bill:

Jamaica Canal, (from back of Coney Island to Jamaica Bay.)

Long Island Railroad Supplementary (permitting the Company to terminate the road at Hunter's Point, and to ferry their passengers and freight across to New York.)

The Southfield and Castleton School (No. 6) bill. Ayes, 30.

Buffalo College Charter, (as amended.)

For collecting Canal tolls. Ayes, 18.

They then fell to work upon the New-York Charter, and filibustered till the recess.

A few more vetoes of small bills are due—but that stream is probably almost exhausted. The Tunnel bill will probably be signed this afternoon. The River-street (Brooklyn) bill has already been signed. The Insurance Department bill as it passed takes effect Jan. 1, 1860—so that dig at Comptroller CHURCH is averted.

It was one year ago yesterday that MARY HARTUNG bought the powdered arsenic—ostensibly for her paramour to preserve stuffed birds with, but which was used to poison her husband with. It is a year next Thursday that he died. Yesterday I called to see Mrs. HARTUNG in the Albany Jail. She was in a large room—which, except that it was within a jail, was very comfortable. She sat reading the Testament; by her side was a copy of the NEW-YORK TIMES—on the wall, pinned up, a copy of FRANK LESLIE'S paper with the illustrations showing Mr. SICKLES' in prison, and the scene where KEY fell. She was dressed in a neat calico dress with a loose white muslin sack. She is really a very pretty German woman, quite tall, young and pleasing in her way. She was unmoved as she rehearsed the story of the poisoning, but when she came to talk of her children a blush spread over her face and neck, and at last she fell to weeping bitterly. Wednesday, the 27th inst., is the day fixed for her execution. Neither the bill nor the resolutions concerning her have passed the Legislature. Still those who have taken an interest in her case hope that Governor MORGAN will respite her until after the trial of REINMAN, who also is confined to the Albany Jail,—and order that his trial be held at once. In a large hall opposite from Mrs. HARTUNG'S room are WILSON and O'BRIEN. WILSON is under sentence of death for killing a canal man in a fight. He struck him a blow on the head, which knocked him into the canal. Then WILSON, with others, tried to recover him, but when the body was found, life was extinct. WILSON was sentenced to be hung, but it is thought that he will be pardoned. O'BRIEN is a drunken old fellow who killed his wife. Both the prisoners were in irons. The long hall upon which the cell doors look out is the place where the condemned are executed. GLAUCUS.

NEW-YORK LEGISLATURE.

SENATE.....ALBANY, Monday, April 18.

Mr. MATHER raised a point of order for the decision of the Chair, that when the New-York Charter bill comes up for a third reading, it cannot be passed until all the other bills are acted on, as it was introduced after the 20th March.

Mr. NOXON stated that the bill had been reported from the Committee 28th March, but it was a substitute for bills long before in their hands.

Mr. MATHER claimed that the bill in body and title was an entirely new bill.

The President stated he would decide the point of order when the proper time arrived.

Mr. AMES moved a concurrent resolution to adjourn to-morrow at 8 o'clock P. M. Lost—11 to 15.

The consideration on the Governor's veto on the Interest bill was resumed after a long debate. The Senate refused to pass the bill over the Governor's veto by a vote of 13 to 14.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table, so that positively there is but little probability of the action being reversed.

Mr. SLOAN moved to recommit with instructions to strike out the first section.

Mr. W. A. WHEELER said the bill had been amended at the request and according to the suggestion of prominent citizens of New-York. It was now commended by all but a few office-holders. If the Democratic Representatives of New York defeated it they must take the responsibility.

Mr. SLOAN—The Senate does not know what the amendments are.

Mr. ELY obtained the floor and spoke at length against the bill.

Several strong remonstrances have been received against the amendments.

After the passage of several private bills, the New-York Charter bill came up for a third reading.

Before the bill came to a vote, the Senate took a recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

A Committee of Conference on the disagreements to the Appropriation bill was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Halsted, Schell and W. A. Wheeler.

On motion of Mr. SCOTT, the Select Committee on such parts of the Governor's Message as relate to taxation and assessment had authority to make a report after the adjournment.

The New-York Charter bill being again announced, a motion to recommit was lost, and a motion to postpone its consideration one hour prevailed.

The bill in relation to planting oysters in Jamaica Bay was passed; also, the Brooklyn Public Park bill.

The New-York Charter bill was then again taken up for a third reading.

Mr. DIVEN moved certain immaterial amendments, which were adopted.

A vote was then taken, and the bill lost by the following vote:

YEAS—Messrs. Ames, Boardman, Darling, Diven, Foote, Halsted, Laflin, Lamont, Loveland, Noxon, Diven, W. A. Wheeler, Westmore, J. A. Willard, Williams, Republicans; and Johnson, American—15.

NAYS—Messrs. Brandreth, Burhans, Ely, Mather, Schell Scott, Sloan, John D. Willard, Democrats; Hubbell, Paterson, Prosser, Truman, Republicans; and O. B. Wheeler, American—13.

The President announced the bill lost for want of a constitutional majority.

A motion to reconsider was tabled, and the Senate took a recess till 7½ o'clock.

ASSEMBLY.....ALBANY, Monday, April 18.

Attempts were made immediately the House met to take up the Appropriation, Supply and New-York Tax bills, as amended in the Senate, but they were all voted down by decisive votes.

The third reading of bills was then proceeded with, and the following passed:

To require the publication of reports of State officers in the State paper.

To enlarge the Auburn, Clinton and Sing Sing Prisons.

To regulate the navigation of Canals by steamboats.

After the passage of several other bills the House, at 12 o'clock, agreed to lay the third reading of bills on the table.

The Grinding Committee reported the pro rata freight bill and the New York Intersectional Railroad bill. The House refused to receive the report by 45 to 49.

The Tax Levy came down from the Senate amended, and all the amendments were not concurred in.

When the question was taken on the amendment, inserting $250,000 for the Commissioners of Record, with the proviso that no further expenditure should be made, Mr. CONKLING charged that he had been informed by two respectable citizens of New-York that corrupt appliances had been used in the House to secure the insertion of this item.

Mr. SCHOLEFIELD moved for a Committee of investigation on the charge.

The Speaker said no charge has yet been made to justify such a motion.

Mr. MORRIS said the statute creating the Commission gave the Supervisors of New-York the power to raise the money for this purpose, and the Legislature should not, therefore, interpose.

Mr. C. S. SPENCER supported the item and urged a concurrence with the Senate. The question on concurrence was lost by a vote of 43 to 43.

The following Committee of Conference was appointed: Messrs. C. S. SPENCER, CONKLING, OPDYKE, TUTHILL and REILLY.

The Supply bill, as amended in the Senate, was taken up.

On reaching the item appropriating $250,000 for the removal of the Quarantine, Mr. MORRIS moved to amend by appropriating $125,000 to be applied as follows: $50,000 to the Quarantine Commissioners to provide, if necessary, for temporary accommodations for yellow-fever patients or other pestilential diseases, wherever practicable, until the present Quarantine is removed; the balance of $75,000 to be appropriated to the payment of the interest on the Canal Commissioners' drafts up to the 1st of January next.

Mr. TUTHILL moved to amend by making it the duty of the Quarantine Commissioners to provide suitable arrangements for the removal of the sick at the Hospital at Castleton and for bidding the sending of any more patients to Castleton after such arrangements are made.

Mr. MORRIS spoke in favor of the item. The present law for the removal of Quarantine was an excellent one; not a cent of the amount appropriated could be misapplied. He earnestly hoped that every member who desired the removal would sustain the Senate's amendment.

Mr. TUTHILL hoped the item would be retained. Every man felt an assurance in his own heart that every cent appropriated under the old bill would be properly expended. It was an absolute necessity that the Quarantine should be removed, and the only objection to the law, introduced this Winter, was, it gave too large a power to the Governor.

Before the question was put the House took a recess till evening.

Decrease in Circulation	156,002

Including the Clearing-House operations of the week, which show the interexchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last season :

The Bank movement of the past week, it will be noticed, was a very even one ; steadier in respect to Loans than was anticipated. The Specie average, owing to the receipts from California coming into the account late in the week, and after the large outgo by the Persia, is slightly lower. The statement, altogether, excites very little remark on the Street, owing to the quiet ruling of the Money Market. The impression is that the mercantile Discounts proper are on the decrease at Bank, and at the same time there is no increased offering of paper to outside lenders. There is a fair business to-day in demand loans at 4@5 ℔ cent. Exchange for the Boston steamer opens steady at 109¾@110 on London. A moderate trade business through the standard banking-houses, and but few transient bank bills offered under 110 ℔ cent. French Exchange is quiet. The Sub-Treasury received to-day $61,000 for Customs and disbursed net over all receipts $98,000 ; reducing the balance to $6,981,902.

The English market news to April 2, by the Europa, this morning, is of a negative character financially. The Funds close the same as by the City of Washington, but somewhat firmer, 95⅜ ℔ cent. The Bank of England was lending freely on Government securities during the closing of the stocks on which quarterly dividends are to be paid. The "other securities," or what we call here mercantile discounts, are up £449,000. The Bank Notes unemployed are down £894,000. The stock of Bullion is down £234,000. The Bank minimum remained at 2½ ℔ cent., to which outdoor discounts generally conformed. The movement of Silver to India continued large, nearly a million sterling for the Oriental steamer of the 4th April ; while the receipts of the same metal from the Continent were equally free. In American Stocks the only new feature is a fall of 3@4 ℔ cent. in Illinois Central, on which the London correspondent of the Commercial remarks :

"Two or three months ago it was mentioned that nothing but a few more deputations from London seemed requisite to give an almost final blow to the shares of the Illinois Central Railway, and the singular fatality that they have now, during Mr. COBDEN'S visit, gone to a point much lower than any previously touched, is of course remarked as a coincidence. Sales were pressed yesterday at 38½ discount, and the final quotation was 39 to 37 discount. To-day the price offered is 40 discount. Perhaps no undertaking possessing such real elements of future prosperity ever experienced a fate so disastrous.

"The main causes are plainly seen by practical people, and the matter is made worse by the fact that those who recognize the evil and the remedies, also fully recognize that there is little prospect of the remedies being adopted, until from the pressure of low prices or other circumstances, the preponderating influences on this side shall have undergone considerable modification. The shareholders stand well as regards respectability, but not as regards practical skill, and the individual interests of a few are of such magnitude as to overpower the better and more self-possessed judgments of the majority. This has always been the view of the Stock Exchange, and until the undertaking gets a better footing in that establishment it will never excite the confidence it intrinsically deserves."

In our own Stock Market we have had an irregular day, and prices at the close were unsettled, though upon the average of the Share list ⅛@¼ ℔ cent. lower than on Saturday afternoon. The exceptions, on the one hand, are Reading, which advanced to 51½ ℔ cent. ; Panama up to 123 ℔ cent., closing 122½@122¾ ℔ cent. ; Harlem Preferred up to 42¼@½ ; and Rock Island, for which there is a continued stiff demand and large sales, at 58 ℔ cent. On the other hand, Illinois Central, sympathizing with the London market, went down 2½ ℔ cent. The most interesting dealings as for the Bear account were in New-York Central and Michigan Central. For the former, at the early session of the Exchange Board, there was a good demand at 76@76⅛@¼, comparing with 76⅛@⅜ at the close on Saturday. But after the adjournment on the Street, and at the Second Board, the price was driven down to 76@75⅜, the same as on Friday, though 1¼@1½ lower than on last Friday efore the sale of 1,500 or 1,800 shares cash stock for Boston account, which has made the deliveries easier on the Street. The transactions to-day in the stock sum up about 7,000 shares. In Michigan Central the sales in the morning were altogether on time options, said to be on a reported falling off in the traffic for the first week in April. In the afternoon some cash sales were made at similar prices. It is one of the singular inconsistencies of the market that while the most has been de out of light receipts against all the Western oads for some months past, they were scarcely spoken of last week when Michigan Central was firm and advancing, and is not referred to to-day in case of Rock Island, which happens to have more friends for the moment than any other of the lines in that direction. On the other hand, the nearly full traffic on the New-York Central, for March—about $517,000 against $537,000 last season—weighs little or nothing against the decline. In the case of the Pacific Mail, the shares are firm at 87½ ℔ cent., and loss is said of the competition of VANDERBILT than when the sellers, two weeks ago, were eager to make contracts at 76@78 ℔ cent., VANDERBILT'S steamship agent' in the meanwhile, having fulminated all sorts of direful handbills against "the monopoly!" From all which the outside public may learn that our Stock Exchange people are of late only brave as sellers, and only consistent in their reasons for selling when the orders to buy chance to be out of the way.

The following is a statement of the earnings of the New-York Central Railroad, for the month of March, 1859, compared with its earnings for the corresponding month of the previous year :

1859	$512,899 35
1858	527,857 87
Decrease	$25,158 52

Messrs. TAYLOR BROTHERS quote Land Warrants, thus :

120 acres, per acre	80	84
80 acres, per acre	90	94
40 acres, per acre	$1 05	$1 10

The earnings of the New-York and Erie Railroad for March, 1859, were $364,296 22

Dyspepsia! Dyspepsia!! Dyspepsia ;!?
What is it? How Cured?
Dyspepsia is our National Disease—weak stomach, feeble digestion, distress after eating, costive habit, bilious condition. How many suffer with it and its attendant symptoms of low spirits, bad taste, coated tongue, obstipified head, and attacks of headache! Yet how few know how to cure it! Generally, because the bowels are constipated, resort is had to cathartics or laxatives. But such a condition was never cured by cathartics, whose only office is to weaken the digestion and impair the integrity of the entire assimilative system.

But HUMPHREYS' HOMŒOPATHIC DYSPEPSIA PILLS—a simple medicated sugar pill—have cured hundreds of the worst and most obstinate cases. This is done simply by improving the tone and restoring the integrity of the digestive organs, from which result good appetite, regular habits, a clear head, and buoyant spirits. Such a medicine is a gem, and only requires to be known to be appreciated.

Price, 25 cents per box, with directions. Six boxes $1. N. B.—A full set of HUMPHREYS' HOMŒOPATHIC SPECIFICS, with Book of Directions, and twenty different Remedies, in large vials, morocco case, $5 ; do. in plain case, $4 ; family case of 15 boxes and book, $2.

These Remedies, by the single box or case, are sent by mail or express, free of charge, to any address, on receipt of the price. Address Dr. F. HUMPHREYS & CO., No 562 Broadway, New-York.

THE SICKLES TRIAL.

and dishonor, and there the Court decided the question. Counsel referred to Vol. 2 Archibald's Criminal Practice.

At this point the Court interrupted Mr. Ould to have the Grand Jury called.

The Court relieved them from further attendance until this day fortnight.

Mr. Ould resuming, replied to the proposition of Mr. Phillips, that this evidence was competent for rebutting the question. That he (Ould) thought was begging the question. Was the evidence of such a character on its face as would be a legal rebuttal of malice? If not, it was not competent. It had been also argued that the evidence was competent as affecting the question whether the passion was real or feigned. It was immaterial for the Jury to find out whether it was real or feigned. It had been also argued that the deceased was giving the signal of adultery, and that therefore the evidence was competent; but if, as the prosecution held, the adultery itself was not a legal provocation or justification, how could an invitation to adultery be. The other learned counsel (Mr. Graham) had argued that the evidence of adultery was always properly before the Court; that was not so. In Iredell's case the evidence came before the Court, whether the evidence of adultery could be admitted to reduce the grade of homicide, and the Court rejected such evidence. He contended that where such evidence was admitted it was admitted only as part of the res gestæ.

The Judge—In the case of Fisher, 8 Carrington and Paine, the whole case is detailed; the interview between the father and the man in whose house the crime was committed; it was committed more than once; and yet all the circumstances were gone into, so that there it was impossible that the facts proved could have been part of the res gestæ.

District-Attorney—The case in volume 6 Iredell was precisely the kind of case alluded to.

Mr. Graham—There all the proofs were got in.

District-Attorney—They were made a part of the evidence of the prosecution, and were put in as evidence connected with the homicide. He challenged the defence to point out a case where objection was made to such evidence and not sustained. It had been also set up here that the indictment recited that the deceased at the time of the homicide was in the peace of God and of the United States, and that he was not so in point of fact, and that therefore the indictment could not be sustained. The words are mere surplusage, and might have been omitted. They meant simply that he was under the protection of the laws of God and man—nothing more than that. If Mr. Key had been engaged in a riot, or if he had been blaspheming, would it be contended that any man might kill him?

Mr. Graham—In an effort to prevent him committing a crime, it would not be murder to slay him.

District-Attorney—Would it be proper to kill a man to prevent him committing an assault and battery?

Mr. Graham—I take the ground that if a man assaults me, I have a right to resist him to the death.

The District-Attorney—That depends altogether on circumstances.

The Judge—It would depend on the nature of the attack.

The District-Attorney proceeded to argue that the testimony in regard to the handkerchief did not connect the parties with any adulterous intercourse; this was therefore not a proposition to continue evidence already partially given, but to give new evidence on a distinct point. He held to his position that it was for the Court and the Court alone to pass upon the nature of the evidence offered. It was only for the Jury to pass upon the facts allowed to be given in evidence. Trial by jury was a creature of the common law, and the Constitution of the United States gave to the arraigned the privilege of trial by jury in accordance with the course of the common law and in no other way. The common law had been announced by Hale, and Foster and East and others, and what he contended for now was one of the principles of that common law. It had been alleged by the defence that the case now presented was analagous to that of Jarboe. He proceeded to show that no such analogy existed. In the case now before the Court the prisoner made the declaration at the time of the homicide, "He has defiled my bed." In Jarboe's case the question was by the prisoner to the deceased, "What do you intend to do?" and the answer was, "You will see what I intend to do." That was a matter which did not explain itself, and therefore it was right for the Court to allow the evidence to be given to explain the declarations. Here the declaration of the prisoner explained itself, and therefore no evidence was necessary to elucidate it. The facts themselves carried no further impression to the human mind than the expression itself does. There was another distinction between the two cases. In Jarboe's case the expression was made use of both by the deceased and the prisoner; here no expression was made use of by the deceased. His Honor in Herbert's case drew a distinction between the declarations made by the deceased and those made by the prisoner, otherwise a party might manufacture testimony in his own case, while no such objection could possibly apply to the declaration of the deceased. He insisted that the instruction of the Court in Jarboe's case applied to this case here, namely, that the facts did not justify the act, or constitute a legal provocation, and that the killing was murder. In regard to the question of insanity, His Honor's rulings hitherto had been that no declarations made by other parties to the prisoner could be admitted as proof of insanity, and on that ground the evidence must necessarily be ruled out. What, then, was left as competent evidence in law? Nothing but that the first prisoner was witness to the adulterous intercourse between deceased and the prisoner's wife. The last ground on which this evidence had been urged was on the ground of its being res gestæ that it was competent as explaining the declaration of the prisoner that the deceased had violated his bed. The declaration itself was part of the res gestæ and was receivable, but the evidence of the truth of the declaration was not res gestæ, and was not receivable. As well might the United States go into a long evidence of the manufacture of fire-arms, and detail the manner of making the pistol which had been offered in evidence in this case. But, say the defence, the declaration of the prisoner shows his motive, and this evidence ought to be received, because it explained the declaration. That raised the direct question whether the fact of adultery constituted a legal provocation or justification and he had already shown that it did not. It had been hinted, rather than argued, on the other side, that the prisoner at the time of the homicide was but defending his wife from future advances of the deceased. The law, however, says that for the taking of human life such a reason affords no justification or excuse. Nothing but an attempt to commit a felony can excuse the taking of life. It must be distinctly shown that the deceased was at the very time attempting to commit a felony. But an invitation to adultery does not rise even to the dignity of a trespass.

The Judge—Five propositions are stated as the basis of an offer to prove the fact of adultery in this case, and that that fact is known by the prisoner. The proposition is not to introduce evidence of adultery as a cooper under all or any circumstances, but whether, under the existing state of the evidence already given, the defence are entitled to adduce further evidence than they have already given to the Jury. It is a question of competency of evidence for any purpose; what may be its legal effect is not the inquiry. That the Court may be called upon to give an opinion on before the trial terminates. But I will not anticipate it. That opinion must be founded on all the evidence, and can be properly investigated when the evidence on both sides is closed. A great mass of testimony has been received going to show the adulterous intercourse, the frequenting by deceased of the immediate neighborhood of the defendant's house. The exhibitions of a handkerchief! What did they mean? Have not the Jury a right to understand what they meant? By themselves they might be regarded as weighing very little, or as having more or less influence on any particular point raised. The Jury must pass on them, and on all the evidence. Can they do so without a full knowledge of what that testimony imparts? At the time of the homicide the prisoner declared the deceased had dishonored his house, or defiled, or violated his bed, for all these expressions have been used by the different witnesses examined. This declaration is a part of the principal fact. It is important to the Jury to have it explained, and it is the right of the defendant, in all justice, to have it explained. Jarboe's case has been referred to as a decision rendered by this Court. On great deliberation, it is one from which I am not disposed to depart. In that case considerable testimony having been given, it was proposed to prove what passed at an interview between the witness, who was the father of the prisoner, and the deceased and the prisoner himself in regard to the engagement of marriage. This interview, it will be observed, was two or three months before the homicide. Here the Judge quoted his ruling in that case and proceeded. It is said, however, that the expression of the prisoner here at the time of the homicide that the deceased had defiled his bed, explains itself; and that it is not susceptible of any further elucidation. It was certainly not stronger than this case of Jarboe, where the prisoner asked the deceased if he was going to marry the unfortunate girl, his sister, and he said, No; you see, or you will see, what I am going to do. The plain English of that is "I am not going to marry her." In this case, it is true, the expression used by the prisoner is one that might be ordinarily understood in a particular sense, but men may have various ideas of phraseology, and the jury are to pass on this case on the evidence. That declaration so be sure is in proof by the United States, but still there may be a different construction put upon it by one man from that put upon it by another. Be that as it may, in order to insure perfect understanding by the jury what was meant by that declaration? I think on that ground also, the evidence is admissible, the Court reserving, of course, an opinion on all the evidence in accordance with the ordinary course of practice here. That opinion is asked in the shape of what lawyers here call prayers. I am of opinion that the evidence is admissible.

The silence in the Court as Judge Crawford pronounced this decision was almost painful, and as he closed there was a perceptible though silent expression of satisfaction.

TESTIMONY OF NANCY BROWN.

Mrs. Nancy Brown was then recalled.

Examined by Mr. Ratcliffe—I was sufficiently acquainted with Mr. Key to know him; the last time I saw him was on the Wednesday before he was shot, when he went into the house on Fifteenth-street; I saw him take a key out of his pocket, unlock the door and go in; he came out in about an hour; I am acquainted with Mrs. Sickles; I saw her go backward and forward often; I saw her go in and then out the back way; he would go to the back gate and let her out, and then he would come out of the front door.

Q.—How long were they in the house? A.—About an hour.

Q.—How did you know that it was Mrs. Sickles? A.—I inquired different times; I saw Mrs. Sickles at her own house after that, then other persons were present; she was the lady I had seen go into the brick house.

Q.—How often had you before that Wednesday seen him go into that house? A.—I saw him go in three times before, when he unlocked the door, and took the key from his pocket; saw Mrs. Sickles go with him and have hold of his arm, except the Wednesday before Mr. Key was killed.

Q.—What time elapsed between these three times you saw them go into that house? A.—About a week; I saw them go in three times within three weeks; Key came up to my door in October; he rode up; he stepped on the porch, and asked me whether the house was occupied; I said no; he asked me who the house belonged to; I told him to a colored man named John Gray, and he lived somewhere on Capitol Hill, and that the colored people could give him all the information; he came about three weeks after that, and tied his horse to my tree; I asked him whether he did not know that that was against the law? [Laughter.]

Mr. Ould—I suppose that is not evidence.

Witness—I asked him not to tie his horse there again.

Mr. Ould—That's not evidence. Stop, Mrs. Brown.

Witness—I was only telling you what it was; he said, I won't tie it there any more; he said, I rented this house for a friend of mine, and want to see how it is situated; I don't know whether he said it was for a Member or Senator; he then untied his horse and went away; I never spoke to him any more.

Q.—Did you notice anything Mr. Key had with him? A.—I noticed, on that Wednesday, he had on a shawl when he went in; it was on his left arm; but had none when he came out; this was on the Wednesday before he was shot; when he first came to the house, we laughed when we saw the smoke come out of the chimney; he went down the yard and got wood to make a fire; saw a white string tied to the upstairs shutters, so that when the wind blowed it would swing.

Q.—Have you seen the shawl since? A.—I saw the shawl, but you know there are so many alike, I don't like to swear to this one.

Mr. Ratcliffe (to officer)—Tell Mr. Mann to bring the shawl in.

Witness—I don't want to tell a lie. [A shawl was produced—it had a gray and red border.] Witness [examining]—This looks like it; he had it folded on his left arm.

Q.—How was Mrs. S. dressed? A.—She had on a little small plaid silk dress, which she wore open, and she had a black Ragian—a cloak, you know, as I call it—fringed with bugles, and a black velvet shawl, with lace; and I saw her in a brown dress, like a traveling dress, the Wednesday she went in and out the back way; in entering the house the back way—it was where they put the wood—the mud was that depth (four or five inches); the alley was not paved.

Q.—What was the state of the weather? A.—It was always fair when I seed them.

Mr. Ould—That's not evicence.

Mr. Brady—You say Mr. Key told you he hired the house for a Senator or Member; did anybody occupy it except Mr. Key and the lady? A.—Never saw anybody go in but theirselves; I am sure I did not.

To Mr. Graham—Saw them go up and turn back; they saw two policemen standing down K-street; they were at the gate; I was at my gate; they went up Fifteenth-street as far as I could see them.

Mr. Stanton requested that the prisoner might retire during this examination. To this the prosecution said they had no objection.

Mr. Sickles accordingly retired, accompanied by an officer.

Mr. Graham—Did you see them come back that day?

Witness—Not likely; they were so scart, they run away. [Laughter.]

Cross-examined by Mr. Ould—Whereabouts do you live? A.—I live next door but one to John Gray's; there are three little houses, in a small frame; I live on the north.

Mr. Brady here put in a true copy of the survey of the premises, from the Surveyor's Office.

Mr. Ould examined the witness particularly about the houses and their tenants in that immediate neighborhood. She said the first time she saw Mrs. Sickles was three weeks after Mr. Key told her he had taken the house; never held a conversation with her until she went to Mrs. Sickles' house; I think it was in November when Mr. Key first came to Gray's house; I took no particular notice; I was standing at my gate.

Q.—How many feet from Gray's house? A.—I never measured it. [Laughter.]

Mr. Ould—About as far as the back part of this room from where you stand? A.—I don't think it's so far.

Q.—How do you know it was Mrs. Sickles? A.—Because I inquired, and was told; I asked different people, and they all told me it was her, and when I saw her at her own house, I knew it was the same person.

Q.—Why did you go there? A.—I went to see if it was the same lady.

Q.—What was the occasion of your going there? A.—She sent for me to identify her, whether she was the same person; it was the Tuesday after the killing.

Q.—How many times altogether did you see them go into the house? A.—Three times, and at another they only came to the gate; as I said before, Mr. Key unlocked the door for her to come in.

Q.—How far off were you? A.—Not so very far, from here to there; she had a black bonnet on but no vail at the time I seed her; could see her fetures; I knowed her afore, and of course knowed her agin; I was standing at my front door when I seed her go in the front door; she passed by me and looked in my face; she was with Mr. Key each time; the policemen were standing at the corner of K and Fifteenth streets talking when Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles came there the last time; they passed on to go into the house; did not go furder; they saw the policemen and immediately turned back.

Q.—I suppose they saw them? A.—I know they did, for they started off.

Q.—Did they return that day? A.—It is not likely they returned that day; not likely, gentlemen; I did not watch more after that; I knew they were not so foolish. [Laughter.] After they seed the police; not likely after that. [Renewed laughter.]

Q.—Where does Mr. Seeley live? A.—His alley opens very near to the back opening of Gray's house; the white string was put out every time that he came first and made the fire.

Q.—How do you know that it was he that made the fire? A.—Because there was nobody else to make the fire, and because I saw him go down and fetch the wood. [Laughter in Court. The Judge ordered it to be suppressed, as there was no cause for laughter.] Never saw Key go there by himself except the first time when he came about the house; saw the string out of the window three or four times; if I had looked oftener I might have seen it oftener.

Q.—How did you come to notice it? A.—Because I knew it was the signal, of course. [Laughter.] She was with him every time I saw him but that once; I saw him go down the yard for wood four or five times; of course when I saw him go down for an armful of wood he was there.

Q.—You did not know whether he was there by himself? A.—I should think he was not when I saw the signal flying. [Laughter.]

To Mr. Ratcliffe—It was Mr. Mann who called for me to go and see Mrs. Sickles, and there I identified her as the person whom I used to see go to that house; the shawl was shown to me the next week, week after the death of Mr. Key; the other man, I never could speak his name [Mr. Glintry,] was there when the shawl was shown to me. I could not identify the shawl, but I stated at that time that I thought it the same shawl; I think it now the same shawl, but I could not swear to it exactly because there are so many shawls like it.

To Mr. Brady—I saw that same lady on Pennsylvania avenue; I never thought she was no lady when I saw her come to the house; I thought she was a servant girl; I saw her getting out of a carriage in the avenue, and asked a gentleman who she was, and he told me she was Mrs. Sickles; I also saw her in the market.

To Mr. Carlisle—I saw the policemen go in the same day the shawl was shown to me; I think the house was opened the Monday after Mr. Key's death; I did not see people go in; saw them at the door; have no knowledge of any person breaking into the house; I could hear a noise of some persons inside, but I could not see them; this was two or three weeks after Mr. Key's death.

To the District-Attorney—Did not hear anybody in the house the week after Mr. Key's death.

Here the Court and Jury took a recess for a few minutes.

Mr. Brady exhibited to the jury the lock taken off the front door of the assignation house in Fifteenth-street, and showed how it was fitted by one of two keys found in the pocket of the deceased. The second key belonged to the door of a house in C-street.

TESTIMONY OF CHARLES MANN.

Chas. Mann, examined by Mr. Ratcliffe—My business is that of a policeman; am acquainted with the location of the house in Fifteenth-street; I was in the house; Mr. Magruder and yourself, (Ratcliffe,) and a third person were present; I found this shawl there, a pair of gloves, a comb, and some cigarettes; saw some chunks of wood there; found a shawl in the bed in the front room; this is the shawl; I showed it to Mrs. Brown, the last witness; Mrs. Brown went to the house of Mrs. Sickles with me for the purpose of recognizing her; I took her there at your (Ratcliffe's) instance.

To Mr. Brady—On the first floor of the house there were two rooms and a kitchen; they were furnished in plain style; there was a carpet, chairs, tables and book-case; on the second story there are two rooms communicating with each other; in the back room of the second story there was a bedstead and bedding, basin and pitcher, and perhaps a bureau; the bed looked as if it had not been made up for a week or two; there were soiled towels lying about; the shawl was found in the bed in the front room; that bed looked as if it had not been made up for some time; have not here the gloves and comb I found there; have them at home; I got into the house over the fence; there was a colored man inside who admitted me; I took the key from the side-room door and found it opened the front door; I unlocked it to admit Mr. Magruder and Mr. Ratcliffe.

To the District-Attorney—I got in through a back window into the entry; a person opened the back window and I went in; the window opened easily; I hoisted it myself, and went in; the other person did not go in; this person opened the shutter for me; did not open the back door at all; it was between one and two o'clock the day after Mr. Key's death; I left the premises the way I came in; I did not examine the back door; I tried to get in that way, but did not succeed; I found it locked; these beds had not been made since they were occupied; the gloves I speak of are not riding gloves, but a pair of ordinary yellow kid gloves; that was the only time I was in the house; I went with Mrs. Brown to Mrs. Sickles' some two or three days or a week after that.

To Mr. Ratcliffe—Think Mr. Key resided in the neighborhood of the Court-house.

To Mr. Carlisle—Do not think the person who let me into the house was a white man; he was light complexioned; he followed me from the jail; I do not know at whose request; never saw him previously or since; saw him at the jail, and asked him to go along with me in the carriage, and he said he'd meet me there.

Q.—What had he to do with the house? A.—I calculated he was to assist me.

Q.—Why did you think he could admit you more than you could admit yourself? A.—I do not know about that; the attorneys of Mr. Sickles requested me to go to this house; I never received anything for it, nor have I been promised anything; there was a man at the jail, and I asked him to step into the carriage and come up to the house.

Q.—Was this John Gray? A.—I do not know John Gray.

Q.—Did you not hear that this was the owner of the house? A.—I understood at the jail that this negro fellow was to accompany me to the house.

Q.—Did you not say you did not know whether he was colored or white? A.—Neither do I; I was at the jail, and employed to do this business; I heard from some one of the counsel—Ratcliffe, I think—that this man was to go with me; he followed us out to the gate, and, as I knew he was to go with me, I asked him to get into the carriage.

Q.—Did you inquire, or did anybody tell you, for what purpose this man was to accompany you to this house? A.—I inquired very little about it; I calculated that this man was to go with me.

Mr. Carlisle—That does not answer the question.

Witness—I hardly know how to understand you, (laughter;) nobody told me why that man was to accompany me to the house, nor did I ask anybody the reason why; I did not know what business I was to do after getting to the house; I knew I was to attend to some business.

Q.—What explained the business to you? A.—I found out myself after I got there.

Q.—It did not strike you before you got to the house? A.—It struck me before I got there.

Q.—Where did it strike you? A.—That is a nonsensical question. [Laughter.]

Mr. Carlisle—Not at all, Sir; you need not trouble yourself to express your opinion; I ask you where you were when the idea struck you? A.—When I left the jail, I knew I was going to the house in Fifteenth-street, and when I entered the house I found the articles I have described and took them away.

Q.—Nobody instructing you to do so? A.—Yes, I was instructed to take them away by Mr. Ratcliffe; Mr. Magruder and Mr. Ratcliffe went with me, and told me to take possession of these things; this other man was there when we got there; have never seen that person before or since; I tried the front door, and he showed me round the back way and opened the shutter; he had not been there before; I thought we might find the back way open; I would like to have that man here, to see whether you could tell whether this man was white or colored; I carried the shawl to two or three persons, to see if they could recognize it; I carried it to Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Seeley; I went to the jail that morning of my own accord, and while there I was engaged in this business.

To Mr. Brady—Am not much acquainted with that neighborhood; don't know whether the houses are occupied by white or black people.

Mr. Magruder—When it was decided that counsel should visit the house it was agreed to take a policeman, and this man was suggested as the person to show the house.

Mr. Carlisle—Now you distinctly recollect that this man went to point out the locality of the house? A.—I do.

[Witness was directed by counsel to go home for the other articles found.

TESTIMONY OF MR. RATCLIFFE.

Mr. Ratcliffe, one of the counsel, was placed on the stand, and related the circumstance of the visit to the house. He said they did not know at the time that this person [Crittenden, he believed] was a colored man, but somebody suggested that he was, and so they did not take him into the carriage.

Mr. Brady—Describe what you found there.

Witness—We found up there a bed all in confusion, and on that bed we found a shawl; thinking I had seen such a shawl in possession of Mr. Key, it was suggested that the officer take charge of the shawl; looking about we found a pair of gloves on the mantel, and a parcel of cigarettes; it was also suggested that he take charge of the gloves and comb found there; cannot say that this is the same shawl, but it is like it; it was handed to Mr. Mann, and he was requested to take charge of it; I think Mr. Key resided in C street, about a mile from the house in Fifteenth-street; Mr. Key was a widower, with four or five children; they had often been in my house; Mrs. Key has been dead some four or five years.

Mr. Brady—That is all.

Mr. Ratcliffe to Mr. Carlisle, with mock politeness—Any question, Sir?

Mr. Carlisle—No, Sir. [Laughter.]

JOHN M. SEELEY, RECALLED.

John M. Seeley, recalled and examined by Mr. Brady—My attention was first called to the visits to the house in Fifteenth-street by Mr. Key and a lady between the middle of January and the beginning of February last; noticed Mr. Key and a lady go there frequently; the last occasion was on the 15th February; Mr. Key's outside garment was usually a steel-mixed gray sack, and on other occasions a plum colored coat; did not notice a shawl; saw Mr. Key put a key to the lock and walk in.

Q.—When Mr. Key and the lady were there the first time, had she walked with him? A.—I did not see her at any time except on foot; do not know that she had hold of his arm; did not see them come out on that occasion; it was between one and two o'clock; I noticed that after they went in the door was shut; the next occasion that I particularize was Saturday, the 12th of February; that was about the same hour.

Mr. Brady—Describe the whole incident.

Witness—I was going up Fifteenth-street; they were going up before me; was walking leisurely; as I passed the door of the house in Fifteenth-street they stopped and went into the house; the lady, as she went in, drew up her veil and looked at me, and I looked at her; I have known Mr. Key for years.

Q.—Did you observe whether the door was unlocked at that time? A.—He unlocked it; I presume he took out the key; saw them come out of the house that day; they were there about an hour or an hour and a half; they came out separately—she first; both came through the front door; some four or five minutes elapsed between her coming and his; she passed on toward her home, and he passed in the opposite direction; the only Sabbath I ever saw them go into the house was on the 20th of February; it was about one o'clock, or perhaps half past one; I saw him enter, but no lady with him; I immediately went up to a back room in the third floor of my house and looked out the window; I saw the same lady come up through the alley leading from K street to L, which forms rather a T; saw Mr. Key come to the back door, and walk down toward the gate, and they returned together to the house; to my certain knowledge that was Sunday, the 20th day of February; am not prepared to say how long they stayed on that occasion—perhaps an hour or an hour and a half; the lady came out the way she went in, but I did not see Mr. Key come out; also saw her pass into the house the Wednesday or Thursday before Mr. Key's death; she passed in by the back gate; that was somewhere about two o'clock; did not see Mr. Key there at all that day; cannot state how long she remained, for I was compelled to leave on my own business; the house had been of unfortunate repute when I went to the neighborhood; the parties left, and the owner occupied it a short time; after he left it remained unoccupied till I saw Mr. Key and the lady go there.

Q.—Did you ascertain who the lady was? A.—I did.

Q.—How? A.—By going and seeing whether she was the person it was said she was; I went to see her about ten days after the fatal occurrence; I went to her residence, and saw she was the identical same person; I went in company with my wife and daughter, who had also noticed them; there was a gentleman present named Hart; the lady introduced as Mrs. Sickles is the person that came to the house in Fifteenth-street.

To Mr. Ould—I passed that house daily; I saw this lady's face three or four times, perhaps; think I saw her face every time she visited; her face was uncovered by a veil at all other times except the time when she threw it up; when I was looking from my back window she was perhaps seventy feet from me; the window was open and I saw her features distinctly; she appeared as if she was looking round to see whether anybody was looking at her; she did not throw her glance at the window where I was; on the 23d or 24th, when I saw her going through the alley on K street, I was at my own back gate; think she observed me then; she made no effort to conceal her features, but went straight up to the door; she had no veil over her face; if I had met her walking on the avenue think I would have recognized her immediately; had seen her passing about the city prior to that, and was told she was Mrs. Sickles; when she came to this house I thought it was the same person; am satisfied now that it was, because I went to their house and satisfied myself that it was she; I was told by hearsay that it was Mrs. Sickles; to satisfy myself that it was, I went to her house to see her, and that fully satisfied me.

To Mr. Graham—The walking was very bad, miry and muddy on some occasions when she came to the house; the alley-way is a very deep, marshy, muddy alley, so much so that the carts with coal could hardly get in; the walking was worse on these occasions than it has been for years before.

Mr Carlisle—You thought it an extraordinary place for any decent woman to go along?

Witness—I thought it an extraordinary place for anybody to go along; the time I visited Mrs. Sickles' house was about a week after Mr. Key's death; I went with my wife and daughter, through curiosity.

TESTIMONY OF SARAH ANN SEELEY.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Seeley, sworn and examined by Mr. Brady—Is the wife of John M. Seeley; knew Mr. Key from a boy, when his father lived in Georgetown; saw Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles three different times on the 16th of February; the first time my attention was called to Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles, they were passing about the street, and the Police had a warrant against him; saw Officer Ginnity there, who stopped them in the evening; when I saw them it was dusk; they were passing Fifteenth-street as if going home; the first time I saw him on Mr. Gray's premises, he was carrying wood in his arms; the next time, he was in the alley, with a small roll in his hand, twisted, which might be paper; I only saw him once with wood in his arms; I once saw her on K street; I saw her come through the alley on Wednesday before Mr. Key was killed; this was about one o'clock; can't say how long she remained there; did not see her come out of the house; never saw her enter there but once, and then she went in alone; she was dressed in black silk the square in the silk was dark brown, with narrow stripes, somewhat darker; cannot say whether they were black or bottle green; she had on a large velvet shawl, with twisted silk fringe and bugles, black bonnet and feathers, and a short black lace veil; the first day I saw her, she wore a white and black silk and worsted dress, and she always had on the same shawl; cannot say whether he wore an overcoat or shawl; he had a small cane and keys in his hand, which rattled; I found out it was Mrs. Sickles for certain; for more than a week after the decease of Mr. Key I went to Mrs. Sickles', accompanied by my husband and daughter, and there identified her as the same; I was introduced to Mrs. Sickles by Mr. Hart; she recognized us immediately after we passed into the room.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ould—When I recognized the rattling of the keys it was on L-street; Mrs. Sickles was with him at the time; I could not see them go in; my house is on L, and theirs was on Fifteenth; I was in the back part of my house, in the second story; she wore a short veil on that occasion; I could distinguish her features; she looked like a person badly frightened.

Q.—How did she exhibit this? A.—I can't give the indications of fear; she looked as if she were severely threatened, judging from the manner she was walking and running after Mr. Key.

Q.—That is your impression? A.—It is; they were on the pavement immediately beneath us; my daughter called my attention to them; I did not pay as much attention to Mr. Key as I did to Mrs. Sickles; I had seen them on the morning of the 16th of February, about eleven o'clock, between three and four in the afternoon, and again in the dusk of the evening; this was the only day I saw them together.

To Mr. Brady—I did not know how long the house had been occupied; I only knew it was occupied when I saw smoke coming from the chimney; did not see anybody else coming there after Mr. Key began to come there.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ould—She always wore a splendid shawl; black velvet, silk fringe, with bugle trimmings; it was a large shawl; it came down low on her person; Mr. Hart received us at Mrs. Sickles' door; I told him what we came there for; I went to see her to be certain of knowing her; when people are summoned to Court they have to be particular.

The Court reminded the witness that she must answer the questions first, and then if she had anything to explain she could do so.

Witness begged pardon; it was the first time, she said, she was ever in Court; please excuse me this time. [Laughter.]

Mr. Brady—No wonder you're frightened, seeing so many lawyers, here.

Mr. Carlisle—The woman can beat us in talking.

Mr. Ratcliffe—It is well they can beat us in something.

Witness—Mr. Hart asked me whether Mrs. Sickles was the same person; I said I thought she was; Mrs. Sickles was in her chamber; she first recognized my daughter; it was in the morning between nine and ten o'clock; she repeated she saw Mr. Key pass in the back way.

Cross-examined—She repeated the description of Mrs. Sickles' dress; Mrs. Sickles asked my daughter whether she was not looking out of the window when she and Mr. Key passed by our house; my daughter replied in the affirmative.

James Ginnity, examined by Mr. Brady—Am a police officer; knew Mr. Key between five and seven years; knew Mrs. Sickles.

Q.—Did you ever observe Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles together in this city? If so, when and where? A.—On the 16th of February, I was standing at the north-eastern corner of Fourteenth and L streets, in company with several gentlemen; they remarked, "Here comes"—

The District-Attorney—Never mind that.

Witness—A remark was made, which attracted my attention to Mr. Key and the lady.

Mr. Brady—Describe their manœuvres.

Witness—They came down L-street to Sixteenth-street, then went up to K-street and up Fifteenth-street, north of L; I stopped to look after them, and as I thought they turned down L-street; I looked after them, and Mr. Key looked behind; he might have been in a little store on the corner, he peeped out, and drew in again; he came out and walked down the street, and I stepped up and spoke to him from one or two minutes on Fifteenth-street, between L and M; the lady was standing with him; I took a good look at her and went home; they went down Fifteenth-street; I do not know where; he had a small brass key twisting in his fingers; it was a key like this [a key in the lock, belonging to the door.]

Q.—Who was present besides you that day, looking at this proceeding and observing it? A.—There was a great number of people on the steps of the doors and all along these streets.

Q.—Engaged in observing them? A.—Yes, engaged in observing them.

Q.—Did you at that time know it was Mrs. Sickles? A.—No, sir.

Q.—When did you discover it was Mrs. Sickles?

Q.—The following week or week after, I think; it was after the decease of Mr. Key; I was requested by one of the counsel for the defence to go and see if I could not recognize her; I went to Mr. Sickles' house; Mr. Hart asked me up stairs, and I went; I saw Mrs. Sickles, and recognized her as the lady I saw on Fifteenth-street; I know James Miller, Alex. T. Borland, David Welsh, Thomas Langley, Joseph Edwards and Wm. Prentice, and think all of them were present when I observed Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles; the lady I identified is the same lady all these persons saw.

To Mr. Radcliffe—The walking was very bad that day; there were several persons besides these I have named, both white and black, standing at the doors and windows, watching Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles.

TESTIMONY OF MATILDA SEELEY.

Matilda Seeley, a bright, fair-haired girl of sixteen, sworn. Examined by Mr. Brady—Knew Mr. Key; knew Mrs. Sickles; knew John Gray's house; saw Mrs. Sickles go in there once two weeks before Mr. Key's death; she went in alone by the alley; had seen her in company with Mr. Key in that neighborhood; saw her twice one day; the first time was between eleven and twelve, and the second time between three and four; when first I saw her I was standing at the corner of Fifteenth and L streets, and the second time at the second floor front window; saw Mr. Key go in once by the back way; afterwards saw Mrs. Sickles at her house, and she recognized me.

To Mr. Carlisle—Did not see either go into the house that day; the day I saw her go in was not the day I saw him go in.

TESTIMONY OF JOHN B. HASKIN.

The Hon. John B. Haskin, recalled—I remember a visit which I made to the house of Mr. Sickles at a time when there was a salad there; this was in April, 1858; Mr. Sickles had left the city the previous day for New-York or Albany; I called, at the request of Mr. Sickles, to see if his wife wanted anything.

Counsel—Relate the circumstance.

Mr. Haskin—A few days after Mr. Key had called at my house, to converse with me in regard to some correspondence, Mr. Sickles was called to New-York on business; before going, he came to my seat in the House of Representatives, and desired me, as having been familiar with himself and wife for years, to drop up occasionally and see his wife, and see if she wanted anything; the day following I had occasion to go with my children and wife to Georgetown, to get some shoes, and when we got opposite the President's house the request of Mr. Sickles occurred to me; I drove up to his door, helped my wife out in a hurry, rushed up stairs, opened the front door and the door of the little library without knocking; on entering the little library, I found Mrs. Sickles and Mr. Key seated at a round table with a large bowl of salad on it, she was mixing it; there was a bottle of champagne and glasses on the table, [laughter, which was suppressed by the officers;] I excused myself for my abrupt entrance; Mrs. Sickles got up, blushed, and invited us to take a glass of wine with her; after sitting there for a moment, I hastened away with my wife; on entering the carriage, or immediately after entering it, my wife said [an attempt to interrupt witness being ineffectual] that "Mrs. Sickles was a bad woman."

Q.—Did you have any conversation with Mr. Key at that time in that room? A.—Very little; I think Mrs. Sickles on that occasion introduced my wife Mr. Key.

Q.—Did your lady ever visit there afterwards?

A.—No, Sir.

Q.—Did you see Mrs. Key and Mrs. S. at any time after that? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where? A.—Shortly after that, in riding through the cemetery, near Mr. Corcoran's country residence, I met Mr. Key and Mrs. Sickles in the cemetery; saw them at the theatre once or twice, and once or twice on the avenue.

Q.—You have alluded to this correspondence and its termination. Did yhu speak to Mr. Key about it?

A.—Mr. Key came to me and talked to me about it.

Mr. Carlisle—That does not strike us as material.

Mr. Brady wanted to show how Mr. Key expressed himself towards Mrs. Sickles, but would not insist on the question.

To Mr. Ould—This salad and champagne interview was between four and six in the afternoon.

Mr. Brady—I propose to ask how, after this correspondence between Mr. Sickles and himself, Mr. Key described Mrs. Sickles—how childlike she was, and how innocent, and what paternal relations he occupied toward her; that she was a mere child, and that he looked on her as a father. Is there objection to that.

Mr. Carlisle—Certainly. I had not the slightest objection that Mr. Haskin should pronounce the judgment of a virtuous matron on the conduct of this woman in April, 1858, though not strictly evidence, but I do not see what Mr. Key's description of Mrs. Sickles has to do with this case.

Mr. Brady—It is difficult for the defence to conceive what line of remark or argument the prosecution may pursue as to the relations between these parties. We know that when the relations between a man and a woman are called in question, suggestions frequently are made about a husband being too confiding, too indulgent, too kind, and that is sometimes turned into a pretext in extenuation of the act of the adulterer. I desire to show that Mr. Key had communicated to Mr. Haskin, and intended Mr. Haskin to impress on the mind of Mr. Sickles that Mr. Key claimed to regard Mrs. Sickles as a young person who stood towards him in the relation of a child and that he was almost in the situation denominated in law in loco parentis, and that to prevent any possible suspicion, on the part of Mr. Sickles, that he (Key) could have towards that girl anything but honorable intentions, he made this declaration, which I refer to, and which was communicated to Mr. Sickles.

The Judge—It does not appear to me that anything Mr. Key said on the subject of his relations with Mrs. Sickles can be evidence on this trial.

Mr. Brady—Well, I have made the offer. It is understood, and I do not propose to argue it.

Mr. Graham—The Court will note our exception to its exclusion.

Mr. Carlisle to witness—You are not mistaken about the point of time. It is as long ago as April of last year that you found Mrs. Sickles entertaining Mr. Key in her own house, in the absence of her husband?

Witness—No, Sir, I am not mistaken about the time.

Mr. Brady—Did you ever communicate to Mr. Sickles this fact which you have related on the stand?

Witness—Never, Sir.

Mr. Carlisle—She was mixing the salad for him?

A.—There was a large bowl containing salad, with a large wooden thing to fix it; she was using the wooden thing. [Laughter.]

Q.—Anything particular about that? A.—Nothing particular.

Q.—And the champagne was ordinary champagne?

A.—Yes, ordinary champagne.

Mr. Ould—How much of it had disappeared? A.—I think about half had disappeared.

The Court at this point adjourned.

The Cruise of the War Steamer Brooklyn.

The following is an extract from a letter written by an officer on board:

UNITED STATES SLOOP-OF-WAR BROOKLYN, }
VERA CRUZ, Tuesday, April 5, 1859.

From Beaufort to St. Domingo we ran almost altogether under steam, as it was a continued calm, and her performance was perfectly satisfactory. From Aux Cayes to Aspinwall we ran under sail; the wind was fair, and she maintained a good character for steadiness. The air ports were open all the way. We came under canvas alone from Porto bello to this place (Vera Cruz) in eight days, (good steamer time.) The ship sailed better than heretofore, having made 11½ and 12 knots for hours together, with royals set. She tacks well; but with more width of rudder, so as to carry her helm directly amidships, she would sail nearly a knot faster, and she would gain a high maximum of speed under favorable circumstances. She rides at anchor very easily, although we have the outside berth of the whole fleet of vessels of war lying here, and we certainly have the least motion; in fact, no one would know that it was blowing on deck, while the Savannah is pitching her hawse holes into the water all the time. She is certainly freer from motion under all circumstances than any vessel I ever saw. If she only had another deck on her to divide the conveniences for stowing all our fixings for war and for working, she would be one of the finest ships in the world.
